Martini Foundation Grant to Support New Teleconference Center

WPC has been awarded a $180,000 grant by the Nicholas Martini Foundation to fund a new state-of-the-art teleconference center, adding an important dimension to the college's already sophisticated communication complex.

The facility, to be named the Nicholas Martini Teleconference Center, will enable the college to originate live, interactive television programs, both national and international in scope. Users of the center will be able to communicate instantaneously with people at a number of different sites via the college's satellite uplink. WPC has the only noncommercial facility with this capacity in the state of New Jersey.

Graduates Urged to Maintain Sense of Ethics

Award-winning public television broadcaster Steve Aduabato, Jr. encouraged WPC's class of 1993 to set out on their career paths with a sense of personal and professional ethics.

During the college's 159th commencement ceremony on May 25, Aduabato warned the more than 1,800 graduates assembled on Wightman Field of the emotional price they would pay if they sold out their values to achieve financial success.

"Sooner or later, one has to ask himself: 'What do I stand for? What do I believe in?'" Aduabato said. "Life is about standing up for what you believe in, no matter what the price."

President Arnold Speert reminded the graduates about the war in Bosnia and the recent tragedy in Waco, Texas, and told them to remember that these events had been caused by individuals.

Henry Gardner Named Assistant V.P. For Minority Education

Dr. Henry A. Gardner, who was vice president for student affairs at Virginia State University in Petersburg, Virginia, has been named assistant vice president for minority affairs.

Gardner took over his new office on June 14. He replaces Leslie Agard-Jones, who left the college in December to accept a position as director of multicultural education in the New York City public school system.

FOCUS ON

Hats Off to Our Graduates

Commencement '93 was a personal celebration for eight members of the campus community. Three staffers celebrated their own graduations after many years of combining work and academic studies. Five others shared in the joy and excitement of watching a family member receive a diploma. Their stories are told below:

Regina Hango

For Joan Hartman, English, it was a proud moment when her daughter, Michelle, graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in political science and sociology. Recently named WPC's "Outstanding Senior," the highest honor presented by the college's Alumni Association, Michelle served this past academic year as both senior class president and president of the Student Activities Programming Board. She will attend Pace University Law School in the fall, with the goal of becoming a civil rights attorney.

Len Mykietyn, the brother of Shea Box Office manager Stephanie Mykietyn, returned to Wightman Field to receive his master's degree in visual arts. A painter who has exhibited his works in New York City, Len earned a B.A. degree, magna cum laude, from WPC in 1990.

Regina Hango

Joy Smith, campus activities, and her husband Dennis flank their daughter Stacy, who received a degree in early childhood education/communication. Stacy, who completed her student teaching at Mary Hubbard School in Ramsey, has passed her licensure exam and hopes to be teaching in the fall. Meanwhile, Joy will continue to have family on campus. Stacy's brother Jeffrey will be a freshman in the fall.

Will Cronk

Martha Lum, business services, began taking courses in accounting at WPC in 1988 "just to get my Accountant 3 ranking." But after piling up all those credits, she decided on a more ambitious goal — a bachelor of science degree in accounting. Working full time while carrying a full course load was a challenge, but this determined grandmother will soon see her dream come true despite injuries suffered recently when she was struck by a car. She'll complete her final three credits during the summer session and have her degree in hand by August.

Regina Hango

Evelyn Henderson, admissions, celebrated the graduation of her daughter, Kate, who earned a bachelor's degree in accounting. Kate is the second Henderson to graduate from WPC. Her brother Everett (left) was a member of the Class of 1990. During her years as a student, Kate worked part-time for business services on campus.

Regina Hango

Claudia Geers, data processing, should have received a special award for perseverance along with her degree in communication. Geers, who joined the WPC staff in 1970, began taking evening classes in 1973. "It's taken me 20 years," she marvels, "but I finally did it!" Sharing her triumph were a friend, Louis Senzamici (left) and her parents, Viola and Joseph Geers.

Amy Wollock, daughter of Stanley W. Wollock, curriculum and instruction, received her master's degree in urban studies and will pursue a law degree at Seton Hall University in September. Both Amy and her brother, Michael, received their bachelor's degrees from WPC last May; Michael is studying dentistry at UMDNJ. "Amy has agreed to take care of Michael's legal needs if he tends to her teeth," says Stanley.

Amy Kays, a Sarah Byrd Askew Library staffer, earned her bachelor's degree in fine arts with teacher certification in January. By day, Amy teaches art at P.S. 15 in Jersey City and the Visual and Performing Arts high school program at Jersey City State College. By night, she is employed at the campus library, a part-time job she has held for three years.

"The strength of your education is that it empowers you to make your own choices, to make a difference in your own life as well as in others," he said. "It provides you with the skills and reinforcement so that you can and do succeed. Do not lose sight of the importance of your actions and involvement in this most imperfect of worlds."

Senior class president Michelle Hartman, who delivered the statement for the class of 1993, asked her fellow graduates to value diversity and respect people of other religions, ethnicities, races, sexual orientations and abilities.

"Throughout my four years at William Paterson I have learned a lot about the differences among us," said Hartman, recipient of the 1993 "Outstanding Senior Award." "I have learned to accept, understand and celebrate these differences. They make us who we are—individuals... We are individuals because of our differences, but we are family because of our similarities."

"Loving one another for our differences, and recognizing our similarities, is truly the most important thing we can do in our lives," she added.

During the ceremony, Aduabato was awarded an honorary doctor of humane letters. State Senator Matthew Feldman, a driving force behind higher educational advancement in New Jersey for more than 25 years, was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree for his "vision, energy, leadership, advocacy and remarkable service."

WPC'ers Celebrate Commencement

WPC's 159th commencement was a celebration for the whole college community.

Family members were there to celebrate with their loved ones. . .

. . . and to record this special occasion on film.

Broadcaster Steve Aduabato (L.) and Senator Matthew Feldman, shown with President Arnold Speert, were honored for leadership and service.

Former students celebrated their new status as alumni.

Faculty donned their colorful academic regalia.

Lecture Series to Feature Kemp, Updike, Trillin and Kirkpatrick

Jack Kemp, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development under President George Bush, will open the 1993-94 Distinguished Lecturer Series on Friday, October 1.

Other notables who will appear during the fourteenth annual series include award-winning author John Updike on November 5, reporter and columnist Calvin Trillin on January 28, and former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations Jeane Kirkpatrick on March 4. A fifth speaker will be announced at a later date.

A limited number of subscriptions will be available for faculty and staff. Brochures outlining the series will be mailed to all faculty and staff at home in late July; orders will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis. Subscriptions for the five-lecture series are $50. For information, call the Office of Community Affairs at x2782.

Martini (Continued from page 1) communications technology," said William Martini, president of the Foundation. "It has a nearly limitless potential to change the future of business, political and educational communication."

"The trustees of the foundation are proud to help the college expand its role in educating people for careers in communication," Martini added. "We know this teleconference center will be a quality resource for the people of New Jersey and the training ground for the careers of tomorrow."

President Arnold Speert thanked the Martini Foundation for its support of WPC's communication program and said he looks forward to working in partnership with the Martini Foundation to advance the growth of telecommunications technologies in northern New Jersey.

The center will be located in Hobart Hall, the home of the communication department, which will reopen in September following a $5 million expansion and renovation. It will provide opportunities for WPC to advance distance learning initiatives in the state, as well as facilitate public discussion on important local, national and international issues. The facility also will serve as a teaching laboratory to educate WPC's communication majors in the most contemporary techniques of conducting teleconferences, an increasingly important method of communicating with people at distant sites.

According to George McCloud, dean of WPC's School of the Arts and Communication, the grant "will allow us to teach our students how emerging telecommunications technology can be constructively applied to education, business and community challenges."

Orchestra Season to Include Performances by Top Soloists

The Wayne Chamber Orchestra continues its tradition of adventurous programming during the 1993-94 season, with a program of works both common and uncommon, American and European, and festive and sensitive.

Celebrating its eighth season in residence at the college, the ensemble will present four Friday evening concerts in Shea Center: October 15 and November 19, 1993, and March 11 and May 6, 1994. Highlights include appearances by cellist Fred Sherry, harpist Ann Hobson Pilot and percussionist Thomas Kolor, and a performance of Faure's Requiem, featuring WPC's own Stephen Bryant and Nan Guptill Crain as soloists with the WPC Festival Chorus.

Subscriptions for the four-concert series for WPC faculty, staff and alumni are $49.50 in the orchestra section, $39.50 in the loge. Individual concert tickets are also available. For information, call the Shea Box Office at x2371.

Jeff Albies Wins 500th Game

Head baseball coach Jeff Albies earned his 500th career victory on May 4, when the WPC Pioneers defeated Mt. Saint Mary of New York 9-1 at Wightman Field.

Jeff Albies

"When I started, there's no way I thought I'd be around for this,"

Albies said in a recent interview with The Record, reflecting on his milestone and his 19 years at WPC.

During his tenure, the Pioneers have won nine New Jersey Athletic Conference championships and four NCAA regional titles. The team has made four trips to the Division III World Series, winning its first national championship in 1992. Albies has seen 16 William Paterson players sign professional contracts, including Dan Pasqua of the Chicago White Sox.

Five Faculty Members Granted Emeritus Status

Five members of the faculty have been named professor emeritus in recognition of their years of dedicated service to the college. Four are former members of the Department of Communication: Sidney Berman, associate professor; Anna Freund, associate professor; Adele Lenrow, associate professor; and Herbert Jackson (posthumously), assistant professor. Aaron Weinstein, assistant professor, Department of Accounting and Law, also received emeritus status.

Gardner

At Virginia State University, Gardner was responsible from November, 1989 for the administration and management of the office of student affairs. He supervised career planning and placement, the counseling center, student activities, student health and psychological services, Upward Bound, education talent search, student support services, residence life and judicial affairs.

Prior to 1989, Gardner was associate dean of developmental education at Fayetteville State University in North Carolina from 1986 to 1988 when he became vice chancellor for student affairs at that institution.

Gardner, who first wanted to be a lawyer but decided early on he would rather be an educator, began volunteering as a tutor and mentor for younger students during his high school days, a role he continued at Kent State during the explosive '60s until he received his B.S. in elementary education from that institution in 1968. He obtained a M.S. in student personnel administration/counseling and guidance in 1971 and an Ed.D. in higher education administration in 1974, both from Indiana University.

Gardner began his career as a sixth grade teacher in Twinsburg, Ohio, and has held administrative and counseling positions at Cleveland State University at Cleveland, Western Illinois University at Macomb, Colorado State University at Fort Collins, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, San Francisco State University and the South Carolina State Department of Mental Health in Columbia.

An avid jogger, Gardner also loves to read from 11 pm to 1 am before going to sleep. His current favorite is John Grisham, author of The Client and other books. He and his wife, who works for the department of corrections as a teacher at the Hanover Learning Center in Hanover, Va., have a 14-year-old son.

BULLETIN BOARD

Commencements....

During his traditional address to the faculty and administrators on the morning of WPC's 159th Commencement, President Arnold Speert extended his hopes for "a productive and rich life after William Paterson College" to Julia Anderson, Sidney Berman, Edward Petkus, Rosetta Sands, Richard Weinberg and Aaron Weinstein, who are retiring this spring.... Humphrey Bohan, son of Leila Bohan, admissions, will graduate as valedictorian at Pompton Lakes High School on June 24. Humphrey, who will study physics at the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Indiana, is one of only 40 freshmen accepted into the honors program at Notre Dame....

College Service Celebrated....

Seventeen members of the college community who have worked at WPC for 10 years or longer were honored on April 23 at a reception held in the Student Center dining room by AFT Local 1796. They are Mike Boroznoff, Paul Finney, Barbara Grant, Michael Hailparn, Sally Hand, Joan Hartman, Leola Hayes, Amy Job, Stanley Kyriakides, William Muir, Irwin Nack, Susan Radner, Richard Reed, John Rockman, Gunvor Satra, Aaron Weinstein and Lois Wolf.... Marty DelConte and Gene Sabyan, repairer and locksmith, respectively, will be feted on June 24 on the occasion of their retirement from the maintenance staff. Pizza, soda and cake will be on the menu at a noon celebration at the maintenance garage. How does one transform a maintenance garage into a party place? "First, we clean it!" says Amy Krieger, maintenance administration. "Then we decorate with streamers and banners."

On a Musical Note....

Rufus Reid, director of the internationally renowned jazz studies program at WPC, was recently honored as an "outstanding alumnus" by the Northwestern University Alumni Association. Reid was presented with the Alumni Merit Award during a banquet held at the Stouffer Riviere Hotel in Chicago. One of the premier double bass players in the jazz world, Reid has performed and recorded with such jazz greats as Duke Ellington, Count Basie and Dizzy Gillespie.... Joan Griscom, women's studies, a member of the Pro Arte Choral, participated in an "all-afternoon performance" of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "St. Paul," on Easter Sunday. The chorale was accompanied by the American Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Leon Botstein.... Eileen Wilson, telecommunications and administrative services, reports that her niece Maureen McNamara played a major role, the part of Joan Blondell, in the musical Ain't Broadway Grand. Although the play was short-lived on The Great White Way, "My family and I thoroughly enjoyed the show," says Wilson.... Speaking of Broadway, Robin Endicott, alumni affairs, notes that the theme for Homecoming, October 11 - 17, 1993, will be "WPC, Up in Lights." This year, Homecoming will be expanded to include a full week of activities, she says. Events planners are challenged to come up with "singular sensations" featuring titles from Broadway plays.... Meanwhile, at the Barn Theatre, Montville, Jay Ludwig, theatre, and his wife Joan Ludwig gave performances worthy of Broadway as they starred in A.R. Gurney's play Love Letters.

Double Blessings....

Seymour Grossman, business services, considers himself twice blessed with the arrival of twin grandchildren on May 10 to son David and daughter-in-law Joanne.

Joanne Grossman with twins Marissa and Eric

Marissa Ann, 4 lb., 8 oz., was born at 8:50 am, followed at 8:51 am by Eric Robert, 6 lb., 3 oz. "Mother and children are doing fine!" says Grossman, who also has a 19-month-old grandson, Kevin.... Ann Jackie Hill, library, is on a "Rocky Mountain high" after the birth of a granddaughter.

Emily Ann-Marie Donahue

ter in Denver, Colorado. Emily Ann-Marie Donahue was born March 5 to Jackie's daughter Jean and husband Larry.... Fran Greenbaum, formerly of career services, is pleased to announce the "birth" of Career Options, a career counseling practice focusing on helping adults in transition, especially women returning to work, coping with job loss

Bulletin Board (Continued from page 6) or changing careers. Resigning from her position at WPC was "one of the most difficult decisions I've ever made," says Greenbaum. However, she says, she wanted to spend more time with her three-year-old son and was finding it "more and more difficult to juggle all my roles." Career Options is based in Ridgewood, and Fran would be most appreciative of referrals. She can be reached at 201-818-0797.

Congratulations in Order....

David Weisbrot, biology, will gain a daughter when his son, Joshua, weds Beverly Barr of Philadelphia on June 27.... Julie Barrier, continuing education, was honored recently by the college's Latin American Network of College Employees (LANCE). She received the 1993 Service Award for Outstanding Service and Significant Contribution to WPC.... Marie Radford, who heads the curriculum materials department at the Askew Library, received her Ph.D. from Rutgers University in May. Her dissertation was "interdisciplinary, combining interpersonal communication and library science," says Marie.

On the Road....

Vincent Parrillo, sociology, has found that multiculturalism, long a subject of discussion and debate in the U.S., is the new "hot topic" in Europe. During his recent lecture tour to Germany, Italy and Sweden sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency, says Parrillo, there was keen interest by political and civic leaders, teachers and students about the United States as either "model" or "nightmare" for Europe as it experiences a large influx of immigrants. "Germany, Italy and Sweden are now becoming receiving nations like the U.S.," says Parrillo, who specializes in immigration and race and ethnic relations.... Janet Pollak, anthropology, was a member of the New Jersey delegation which traveled to Washington, D.C. this spring to demonstrate for lesbian, gay and bisexual civil rights. More than one million people participated in the historic April 25 march, and she says.... Linda Dye, exercise and movement sciences, will be on the campaign trail this summer. She has declared her candidacy as an Independent for the New Jersey Senate in the 21st District. "Higher education needs more sympathetic and financial support from the New Jersey Legislature," says Dye. "One of the ways to bring this about is for people associated with higher education to run for public office." She is part of a coalition of other independent candidates which is focusing on labor issues, women's rights, universal health care and government reforms.... Carole Sheffield, political science, has been invited by the Citizen Ambassador Program, People to People International, to join a select group of women's studies practitioners and feminist scholars who will travel to Belarus and Russia this October. The delegation will examine, among other topics, the current status of women's studies at all educational levels and the projected impact of change in the political environment of both countries on the continued development of women's studies programs.

Union Elections

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT), Local 1796, held elections in May. Linda Dye, exercise and movement sciences, and Susan Radner, English, were re-elected president and vice president/chief negotiator, respectively. Robert Bing, accounting and law, will continue to serve as vice president/grievance officer and Jackie Hill, library, as recording secretary. Martin Rudnick, accounting and law, was elected treasurer; Stanley Wollock, curriculum and instruction, will serve as corresponding secretary.

The International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers (IFPTE) went to the polls in April. Elected as chapter officers were Victor Cirello, operations engineer, president; Robert Baker, campus police, vice president; Ruby Milligan, custodial services, secretary; Bill O'Brien, building maintenance, treasurer; and Ronald McLaurin, grounds, sergeant at arms.

The third union represented on campus, the Communication Workers of America (CWA), will hold elections in November.

BOARD NOTES

The Board of Trustees held a public meeting on May 11, 1993. At that time the Board approved the conferring of an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree upon Steve Adubato and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree upon Matthew Feldman at the 1993 commencement exercises.

Tuition for fall, 1993 was set at $100 per undergraduate credit and $180 per graduate credit for out-of-state students; and at $71 per undergraduate credit and $142 per graduate credit for New Jersey residents. This increase, it was noted, is contingent upon no further cuts in the Net State Appropriation and the full funding of the Tuition Stabilization Incentive Program.

Changes and additions were made to the list of courses that are assessed a $30 per semester laboratory fee. A private lesson fee in music of $100 per course per semester was instituted, replacing the applied music fee of $30.

The board authorized the college to enter into an agreement with The Architectural Group of Paterson to provide architectural services for renovations to the dining facilities in Wayne Hall, and with Rafael Vinoly Architects for consulting services associated with review of the Master Plan.

The following personnel actions were taken, including the granting of emeritus status to five faculty members in recognition of their years of dedicated service to the college:
