Concrete to replace grass

By Bar Hopper
LAFF WRITER

The college plans to cover all areas of its campus, that are showing soil instead of grass, with concrete, said Reichstag Hindenburg, director of College Misinformation. The cost of the project will be an estimated $700,000, which will come from the tickets given to law-breaking citizens of the campus.

"Too many students, faculty members, staff and visitors do not use the concrete walkways the campus provides and opt to walk on the beautiful grass landscape," said Porky Spareribs, minister of Greenbacks and Finance. "The college administration will no longer tolerate this irresponsible and damaging act and will begin to fine all people who walk on the grass."

The college will hire a new security firm to make sure everyone abides by the new rule, Hindenburg said. Anyone caught walking on the grass, any grass on campus, will be required to pay a $200 fine. If the person refuses to pay the fine, they will be sentenced to 1,000 hours of community service to the college.

"We feel this is a great step forward for William Paterson," Hindenburg said. "This will show visitors that we care about our grass and will not put up with any enjoyment of it."

Jackbilt D. House, president of Stoned Architects Inc., said he wants to present an idea to President Arnie Sneer that five-foot high fences be placed in front of the most frequently used grass-way.

Any vehicle driving on the paved sidewalks will have the right-of-way to pedestrians and is instructed to hit them rather than drive on the grass, Hindenburg said.

Study says beeper wearers

insecure about sexual ability

By Chuck U. Farley
FORMER (sob) EDITOR-INTOXICATED

The WPC Department of Phallic Studies has recently released a study which links men who carry beepers and men who are insecure about their sexual organs' size and/or aptitude.

"It's very simple," said Wadsworth P. Longfellow, chair of the department and co-writer of the study. "The beeper represents an extension of the penis and has characteristics that most men wish their organs had. It is carried outside the clothes, but close to the body. It is always accessible. It represents power and authority. Hell, some of them even vibrate."

The study, entitled "Hang Small and Carry a Big Beeper," was based on six month's research conducted by the department. Longfellow and his co-writers, professors Richard Z. Prikker and Phyllis W. Ithcom, incorporated 486 men into their study, researching their endowments and psychological histories.

A sub-topic of the study detailed the relationship between the depth of the insecurity and the position of the beeper on the body.

"Men who carry their beepers in, say, a breast pocket or elsewhere close to the heart region are concerned mostly with

"I am really happy with this new ordinance," said Dude Skunkcabbage, Sorry Government Association president. "This will really make our campus look nice."

"I love to drive over students," said Mario Andretti, driver of the SGA shuttlebus. "This will give me the perfect opportunity to do it and not get in trouble. I plan to use the sidewalks a lot more than I used to."

Areas to be consistently monitored are the grass in front of the Student Center, medians between parking tiers, and in front of the library, Hindenburg said.

how their organ helps or hinders a meaningful relationship," Ithcom said. "However, men who carry their beepers on their belts are overcome (pardon the pun) with insecurities about the penis itself."

In fact, Prikker pointed out that there is a directly proportional relationship between serious, potentially psyche-damaging insecurities and the beeper's proximity to the exact center of the belt.

"Look around you," Prikker said. "See that guy who thinks he's in a position of massive power and carries his beeper right in the middle of his belt? He's got problems."

The findings of the study have been widely refuted on campus.

"I resent the implications of this so-called 'study,'" said Dude Skunkcabbage, Student Garbage Association president, at a press conference.

Skunk-cabbage carries a beeper in various positions on his belt.

"I think it's a conspiracy," he said. "They know I carry a beeper. They think I'm not well-endowed. Hah!"

Skunkcabbage was arrested and charged with extremely indecent exposure at the press conference.

"I do indeed carry a beeper," said P. Phart Whooten Jr., President-elect of the Student Ambiguity Association. "I do not believe, and I am sure my advisers would concur, that my beeper-toting activity is in any way a representation of insecurity, phallic, political or otherwise."

"This is just another example of how things get distorted in a repressive capitalistic society such as ours," said Halibut Levi-Strauss, beeper-toting student and phallic rights activist. "Whose money funded this study? I think the professors were influenced by the sponsors of the study—probably some person or group who is jealous of my beeper."

"I just wear my beeper because it goes so well with my entire wardrobe," said Handal Kock, Student Infighting Association treasurer. "And, I can always be reached by my accountant when he's balancing my checkbook."

"I think the study is sexist," said student Reahk Chinery. "Are they trying to say that women who carry beepers can't be insecure about penis size?"

Longfellow and Prikker made a point of including an addendum with the study, stating under no uncertain terms that they are not now, nor have they ever been, a beeper-carrying member of any party.

Parking problem solved with opening of new lot

By Brewski H. Soldoff
LEWDS CONTRIBUTOR

A new solution to the continuing saga of campus parking problems has been found, said Minister of College Misinformation Reichstag Hindenburg. President Arnie Sneer announced the new solution Friday after a student discovered a buried car, Hindenburg said.

"I was walking and minding my own business when I saw what looked like a car," said music major Viola Stradivari. "So I investigated it and discovered the parking and brought it to President Sneer's attention."

The new parking will be located between the Wreck Center and Whitefish Field, Hindenburg said. Apparently, the new underground lot will be big enough to park 80 cars of small to medium size. The construction will begin immediately, as soon as Minister of Finance and Greenbacks Porky Spareribs allocates the funds, Sneer said.

"Why didn't I think of this solution?," Sneer asked. "It will be a pleasure to not have to hear the complaints from those damn students. In fact, normally I would have hugged Spunky [Sneer's teddy bear], but since I lost him a couple of years ago, I jumped up and down instead."

"The underground lot will house only midsize to subcompact type cars," Hindenburg said. "But the majority of student traffic are those types of cars anyway."

In order to gain access to this parking area, a road will be built and access will be given via Lot 6, he said. The Bored of Betrayors will be meeting Wednesday to vote solely on where to place the road.

Student reactions included excitement, disgust and even

Jimmy Hoffa's body found

By Brewski H. Soldoff
LEWIS CONTRIBUTOR

For many years, rumor had it that slain Teamsters Union President Jimmy Hoffa was buried in the end zone at Giants Stadium. The rumor is "dead wrong," said Minister of College Misinformation Reichstag Hindenburg. Construction worker Jack Hammer discovered Hoffa's body Thursday at the new dormitory site while he was working on the walls of the foundation.

"I was frightened as hell," Hammer said. "In all my 15 years in the construction business I never came across a hand sticking up out of the dirt. So I dug further only to discover this horror."

The idea that Hoffa was buried in the Meadowlands was a farce on the part of the Teamsters in order to throw off the press, said Vice President for Academic Adultries Anymore Smut. The fact of the matter was that no one truly knew where Hoffa was buried.

There were many people on the campus and in the administration that had uses for Hoffa's corpse, Hindenburg said. The Campus Kops want to use his body for target practice, said Campus Kops Sgt. Roy L. Jackass. However, many other campus departments want him as well.

"I would love to have Hoffa's brain," said Professor of Psychopathology, Ken B. Demented. "I have never truly seen what it was like to examine a great criminal mind like his. Who knows? Maybe I will become famous and be able to quit this job."

"I think that the Biology Department should exclusively get Hoffa's body," said Amy N.O. Acid, assistant professor of biology. "We can perform as many experiments on him as we want because he is dead as a doornail. My students will be able to say that they learned biology on a real dead criminal."

And the list goes on and on, Hindenburg said. However, before Hoffa's corpse is divided up or allocated, the administration has to decide how and when it is going to be done.

"I think that this is the most disrespectful thing you can do," said Bill O. Wrights, professor of law. "Despite the fact that he was a criminal, you are denying him due process. I think that you should just give him a proper burial."

Right now, Hoffa is being preserved in a freezer in the vomitorium in Wayne Stall.

Advice offered to students

By Kut Potatoes

LAFF WRITER

As a member of the WPC graduating class of 1992, there are certain thoughts that need to be reflected on in order for future students to understand the N.J. state school system.

Let there be no barricades obliging students into white rooms to choose among a reduced course curriculum. Let the hideous bureaucratic system perish in a sea of drop/add sheets and timid secretaries.

For the campus faculty, who shuffle from desk to desk like fat termites, raise a sickle of doubt to battle their genius and to remind them who pays for their leather bags.

Stop them! Stop the advisors from evading your education. Seek out answers as demons seek out lost souls. On a highway of costly tolls, make every attempt to stop and take the roses.

There is no one here you must thank but yourself, your friends, and your family. Favors don't fly on this campus. The system is here for you. Without our cattle prone bodies on the registration lines, wrapped around the campus like the entrails of a sick snake, the college does not exist.

No question you have should go unanswered. No request unattended. And after you have waited, written, toiled, and shrugged, then, and only then, you must take with you no remorse. Take their teeth out of their mouths if so be it, but don't leave their sweat-stinking offices without the answer you sought.

Abolish leaders, slogans, and cheap cliques and be a member of life. There is nothing waiting for you after the cap and gown. The life you make starts now. Release your wings from your mind and burn. Burn and burst like roman candles in the darkness. Goodbye, WPC. Goodluck, bodies.

"What are you trying to do here?," asked environmental activism major Stony Greenfield. "Do you realize what a plan like this would do to the environment? It would make our college more of a pile of garbage than it already is."

"The environment will be dealt with in the usual manner, irresponsibly," Hindenburg said.

The new lot is scheduled to open in the fall. Stradivari, along with Smeer, will cut the ribbon on September 20.

Bacon letter I

Editor, The Bacon

I am writing this letter with much anguish. I am telling you my secret because it causes me much despair. I really don't know how to say this. I can't just come out and say it. I guess I really have to, however. I took me years and years of personal pain and struggle. I have received consultation from psychiatrists, psychologists and even accupuncturists. I can now come out and admit this problem publicly. It took me a long, long time to do it. I can really say that I no longer am afraid to come out and talk about my problem. I have talked to my parents, my brothers and my sisters. I can now say what I have to say, in public. I, Harvey Walldivider, have chronic first person disease. There, I said it.

In response to the growing amount of anti-American sentiment on campus, I would like to say one thing:

Unlike the mindless masses that permeate the college campus community here at WPC, I am the supreme intellectual figure here on campus. Without the slightest hesitation, I can recite Plato's Republic—in Latin. I am an expert archer, polo player and have instructed many a pupil in the field of Euclidian geometry. I am a Zen Buddhist priest and was reincarnated with the soul of James Joyce. Due to a financial misfortune, I am relegated to attending classes here in Waayne. Now that you know who I am, please do not converse with me. Do not touch me, do not even think of being my friend.

The solution to the recent riots in LA is simple. Take the armed forces out and just drop Nuclear Warheads on them. ## Fashion on campus: Hated it!

By The Diva
STAFF WIELDER

While most of you look forward to summer with great anticipation, I am already thinking ahead to the fall with a sense of dread.

Why, you ask?
One more semester of watching you people fall further into the fashion abyss. One more semester of watching you slink around campus in hopelessly nasty rags. I shudder delicately. I won't even touch summer fashion because the idea of most of you half naked is just too much to bear!

For the gentlemen this fall, I offer a novel concept: wear socks! This whole ankle-slut look (rolled-up jeans, no socks, boat shoes) does nothing for me. Besides, who can stand the smell of your poor little tootsies roasting like a wiener schnitzel all day? Dr. Scholls must be making a fortune off you people! Rolled-up jeans only serve to make your ankles look as skinny as your wrists, and your ass look huge!

Not many men can carry off a funky fashion like our new SGA Prez.

P. Phart Woofers, but boys, here is a start. Textures are in. Interesting to look at, fun to feel. Woofers carries it off with a style and grace that's fabulous for men. A definite fashion yes, as any self-respecting female will tell you. For those aforementioned ankle sluts, check with Phart Woofers for the latest in funky sock fashion. Yes indeed, Phart, you may just single-handedly resurrect the argyle.

One last tip, boys: if you find that you and the men from the past two generations of your family can share clothes, you are in big fashion trouble. Worse, if you voluntarily look vaguely like you belong on a golf course, you have hit on yet another heinous NOT in fashion. You share this dubious honor with SGA Spender Handal Kock.

On to the ladies, and I use that term loosely in this company. There are so many fashion NOTs on this campus that I am clueless as to where to begin.

Let's start with those who are afraid of color. Color is not fatal, and it won't even bite! I promise. The lank hair and shapeless black garb serves only to make you all look like vampire wanna-bes if you're lucky, and if you're not, the rest of us run around wanting to call Quincy and find out why you died! Definite fashion NOT.

On to hemlines. Paris tells us that the length of the hemline doesn't matter, but ladies, let's be honest. If your sweater is longer than your skirt, Bingo! you're in trouble.

The Bimbo Ho From Hell look is out. Let it rest in pieces. This look includes the overdone makeup (just one eyelash short of Timmy Fye), and of course, the Jersey Boy Catcher Hairdo. You know that over-permed, over-sprayed, teased to suicidal tendencies 'do that adds feet to your height and miles to the hole in the ozone. How do you find out if you're a perpetrator of this fashion faux-pas? Get in a convertible and drive 75 miles an hour down any highway. If you get out and your hair is the same, Bingo!

Let's try sleek sophisticated looks with just a touch of personality for the fall. Again, let's look to the SGA for fashion leadership. Bea Hooker, our new Exec Veep knows how to carry off a seriously fun, feminine look. Never a too long or too short hemline, and always a look that is right for her. She has a closet that many would die to get into.

At least let's ban Spandex.

no one over 120 pounds should wear Spandex, ever! And one last little piece of fashion advice: it is always in bad taste to steal a bit of subculture that you are not a part of.

Party on (well-dressed, of course)!

Love,

The Diva

Be cool for the 90s: wear your "rubbers!"

By Smelly Flowers
IN-AND-OUT-SIDER EDITOR

There are numerous choices available to you, because this is America, and you are free to protect yourself and your lovers as you see fit. This does not include the skin flute concerto, the Plastic Wrap Cop-out, or the Sheep-Gut Manufacture.

First, let us abolish this myth of "I can't wear condoms, none of them fit!" If you've got the balls (excuse the pun), most convenience stores carry large-size condoms. And if regular size is baggy, then honey, you have my condolences.

Rest assured that wearing your rubbers is a lot cooler now than in kindergarten: these indispensable little accessories come in all colors, shapes, sizes and textures. Experiment! You're sure to find one that's right for you.

If your sex isn't interesting enough by itself, you can get bizarre. Condoms come ribbed, studded, festively colored and glowing in the dark. A word to the wise: ribbed is a complete lie, and studded hurts. The funky ones are more a source of comedy than sexual gratification.

As far as the popular styles go, there are several viable options. They come plain, lubricated, thin, thick, reservoir tipped (ugly as hell), etc. The best ones are Spartan Reds. They're smooth, shaped like a schlong, odorless and strong, plus they warm up and get soft with body heat, for a truly joyful experience. Don't use the WifeSmiles they carry on campus: they reek, they're the wrong shape, and they break under pressure. The lubricated ones are extra safe, but they eliminate the possibility of appetizers or desserts.

New on the market are Snap Sacks for Her, the condom that goes in instead of on. They actually seem to be a viable option, but in action, I can only suggest them experimentally.

So kids, feel free. Enjoy your Horizontal Tango, your Anatomy lessons, your banana split, your salami hiding, your trip through the Tunnel of Love. Have a bonin', boinkin', doinkin', porkin', slammin', jammin', bangin', Hershey-packin', lip-smackin' good time. And have no fear: Spartan Man is your friend, and I personally guarantee your satisfaction.

In this time of high-speed, stressful lifestyles, fatal diseases and the Republonazi movement toward the combination of church and state, let us be real for a moment. Though the Summer of Love is a thing of the past, we need not give up the one recreational activity that's relatively free of expense.

To make your decisions about this activity a little easier, the In-and-Out-Sider has undertaken the task of surveying the birth control/disease prevention scene. Let us probe deeper.

First of all, gentlemen, do not assume that your lady is stoking her system with hormones. Chivalry in the 1990s is having your own equipment with you at all times. For both of you, adorable, fashionably decorated condom cases are on the market, for avoiding those ugly wallet rings.

Those of you who, out of distaste, egotism or ignorance, choose not to take the logical option, you are schmucks and deserve to spend your sexual prime locked in a bathroom with a copy of S-Sense 1992 and your buddy Mr. Fingers.

THE UNION URGES WPC STUDENTS TO WRITE THEIR LEGISLATORS IN SUPPORT OF HIGHER EDUCATION.

BECOME A PART OF THE POLITICAL PROCESS OR BECOME OVERWHELMED!!

THE FOLLOWING IS A SAMPLE LETTER WHICH COVERS THE MAIN POINTS IN IMPROVING FUNDING FOR HIGHER EDUCATION. USE THIS LETTER OR DEVISE ONE OF YOUR OWN. COPY IT TWO TIMES, SIGN THE LETTERS AND RETURN IT TO AFT 200 HUNZIKER. THE UNION WILL MAIL YOUR LETTERS TO YOUR LEGISLATORS.

Dear Legislator,

I am a student at William Paterson College. I urge you to support the tuition stabilization Program, which will cap tuition increases at 4.5% and provide approximately 1.2 million dollars to students at William Paterson College. Also, I urge you to ask President Speert and the Board of trustees to not raise fees for room, board, laboratories, parking ect. I do not want to pay more for less.

Unless the exorbitant increases for tuition and all other college-related expenses are stopped, access to higher education for me and other New Jersey students will be further restricted. We must have an affordable, quality college education if we are to prepare for the jobs of the future.

In addition, don't cut the college budget by not giving full-funding to our professor's salary and health benefits package. If the college has to pay for salaries with our tuition fees they will cut the number of faculty who teach and consequently, I will have fewer sections and courses from which to complete my schedule. Such devious "shifting of costs" means there will be fewer sections and an ever increasing number of students in each section. I do not want to see fewer course offerings, more canceled courses, larger class sizes and reduced student support services.

Finally, I urge you and all members of the Legislature to provide funding through the legislative process for the negotiated faculty, staff, librarian contracts. Do not cut employee health benefits or shift health costs to college employees. No more "smoke and mirrors." If I am to have a quality education, William Paterson College must have the salaries and benefits to attract and retain excellent faculty and staff.

Thank you for your interest in higher education. I look forward to receiving your response to my letter.

Rockers flock to Seattle seeking stardom

By Merry Herb Leaf
STAFF WRITER

Seattle is definitely the rock 'n' roll mecca of the moment. Thanks to the monoliths known as Sub-Pop Records and MTV, one can now meet 13-year-old Spoiled Brats on the Block fans who are also into Nervosa (who, anal-retentive-of-me would like to point out, are from Aberdeen, WA—not Seattle), Soundyard, Oyster Jelly and possibly even Pudmoney. People from all over the world are flocking to Seattle like precocious youngsters to wet cement, and if you tell a kid you're from Seattle, you will have your feet things more interesting, say you never lived in Seattle—instead, all everybody you hail from another Washington State town such as Bellingham, Spokane, Tacoma, Olympia or foot. Wear flannel shirts at all times and invest in some Liquid, Mels, Flapper and White Rag concert tees. Wear some love beads around your neck. And be sure to concen-and if a string on your guitar breaks while you're playing, big deal. While you're playing, run around stage a lot and every now and then, throw yourself into the crowd yelling "A denial! A denial!" You might also want to smash a few instruments when you're back on stage and if you really want to impress people, drink lots of beer so you'll be able to belch over the microphone.

People from all over the world are flocking to Seattle like precocious youngsters to wet cement, and if you tell a kid you're from Seattle, you will have your feet kissed at two-second intervals.—MHL even Walla-Walla. If you're me, say you dated Holy's Curtsey Lver before Nervosa's Kurd Nobra stole her from your clutches; if you're female, say you're the force behind Soundyard's Christ Colon! You might want to mention that, to Sub-Pop guru Brace Padded, you earned a degree in punk rock from Olympia's Evergreen State College.

trate the most on your hair: don't wash it too often and, if you must keep it clean, don't be so quick to comb it. As you're driving to gigs, you might want to stick your head out of your car window to obtain pseudo-dreadlocks. And if you've got very long hair, be sure it obfuscates your face when you're on stage.

Make your music loud and heavy. Listen to everything that ever came out on Sub-Pop religiously and steal your older brother's MC3, Smooches, Phonics and Blech Sunday records. When you are interviewed, say that you were born a punk rocker and will die a punk rocker. If a kid asks you for an autograph, make him or her feel guilty by saying: "Hey, I would've never dreamed of asking Horny Roll-ons and Jello Pudding for their autographs! What do you think I am—a rock star?"

If you're a musician and plan on moving to Seattle, you can count on instant success. If you're in a band that is unable to leave its humble abode, well, I have some advice on how you still may be able to cash in on the Seattle sweepstakes.

First of all, record a demo and start playing shows in your area. Even if you've lived in the bowels of New Jersey all your life, tell people you're from the Great Northwest; you left the area because you found it to be too "stifling." If you want to make

Your image, of course, is the utmost importance. Tear huge, jaggy holes in your jeans. Wear your grandfather's antediluvian oating shoes or, better yet, go around bare-

I will finally discuss the musical aspects. First of all, make sure all of your instruments are old and beaten and that you have lots of wah-wah pedals and fuzz boxes. Don't worry if your instruments are in tune or not

Well, I think I gave you enough hints for now. Follow these tips, and I guarantee you'll hit the big time. Just remember to send me a platinum album when your song is played on Hot 97 and Weird All Yankinit wants to collaborate. Peace.

Bacon letter V

Editor, The Bacon:

The Stud has returned for yet another installment of "By the Stud For the Stud." This week The advice is simple. The easiest way to get a babe into bed is to pay her. Some women would even take some food from Wayne Stall as payment. Now you women, you should not feel left out. There are literally hundreds of guys here for you to choose from. Most of them will require nothing but a good time in payment. And on that point, MEN START MAKING THEM PAY. It figgures women were smart enough to charge for their services while men just give it away free!

Men, wake up and learn that women only like guys with big goofy letters on their chests. Join one of the fragoofemities on campus and you too will get laid.

But seriously folks, the only true way to win a womans heart is to treat her with respect and admiration. Remember, be friends first but not too good because then they don't want to "ruin it."

shock. However, one of the members of the USA basketball team and NBA MVP River Jordan doesn't seem to care who will bring home the gold.

"I don't mind not being on the team. This gives me a chance to concentrate on my golf game this summer."

While River is looking forward to taking his swings on the green, Duke All-American center Jewish Lighter didn't take the decision lightly.

"I knew I should've gone to WPC," pouted Lighter.

Former Pistons coach Upchuck Daily will remain as coach of the team. This could be an excellent opportunity for WPC to find a coach.

"I would love to coach for the Pioneers after the Olympics," commented Daily.

The Pioneers will begin working out at the Rec Center. They plan on having scrimmages against the Knicks, Nets, and Montclair State.

said OG Ed O'Medium. "But we're all really excited, I can't wait."

"Huh?" said OT Brian Amacochicocochicoo.

After a brief explanation by some teammates, Amacochicocochicoo replied, "Oh, Cool."

Tom "Flush" Garden was as saying, "We're all really excited, I can't wait."

Tito Bearit was upset and announced that he will be failing a class just so he can come back and play next season.

Shortly after this announcement, Skeve Caught-gain came up with a unique quote: "We're all really excited, I can't wait."

When we finally got in touch with Penn State Head Coach Joe Paternity, he was quoted as saying, "We wanted Miami or Notre Dame, but it looks like God was against us. We're going to have to gear up and really focus. We're not really excited, I can wait."

The New York Strangers have had a long and mind-boggling history. Don't you think its time to have a few laughs just for old times sake? Let's review some great memories.

1926- The Strangers play the first nine games of the season with five skaters and no goalie. They finally come to the realization that they may be able to keep their goals-against average down by putting someone in the net.

1928- The Strangers win their first Stan Laurel Cup after all the other teams in the league must forfeit due to a botulism outbreak across North America.

1944- New York winger Hugo Blubberchuk misses an open-net in overtime of a game that would have sent the Strangers to another Cup final. Blubberchuk claimed he could not shoot the puck because of a sudden pain in his stomach feelings hurt by so-called fans. 1990- Strangers defenseman Cryin Screech breaks his invertebrate late in the season. Afterwards, he insists little invisible men from Australia pushed which he accounted to some bad clams he had had for lunch.

1954- Strangers pass up the chance to draft Gordie How. Miss-management insists How is a punk who is not durable enough.

1968- Strangers' star Buster Lipopen refuses to play anymore in front of the New York crowd claiming to have his him from behind.

1992- Strangers goalie Spike Sphincter gives up a goal from beyond the red-line in a playoff game. Sphincter says his concentration was disrupted when he intercepted secret radio waves from the planet Mars through his goalie mask.

Hoops squad Spain bound

This summer, America will send its best athletes to Barcelona, Spain for the 1992 Summer Olympics. Back in 1988, the U.S. men's basketball team consisted of the best college players, but were unable to bring home the gold. As a result, the U.S. Olympic Committee decided to send the NBA's all-stars to represent the team. The anticipation of watching these players form this "wonder team" has become very intense for Americans as the team's competition will be the highlight of the summer. However, the U.S. Olympic Committee has, once again, decided to replace these fantastic all-stars with...you guessed it... the WPC men's basketball team.

This past season, the Pioneers compiled an average 6-19 record. Apparently, records aren't a major factor in selecting a team to represent the United States.

"We believe that they could play very well this summer," commented a committee panelist.

But the Pioneers were surprised at finding out the decision, especially their co-captain.

"I'm shocked," said Tumme Patterscam. "I mean, I thought I had other plans this summer like...like... Heck, I'll play, why not."

Meanwhile, many basketball fans also expressed their Head football coach Jerry Galloper announced today at a public relations luncheon that his squad will square off with Penn State on August 29 at Gnats Stadium in the Mellowlands.

WPC edged out Miami, UCLA, Notre Dame, and Kean College for the rights to play Penn State.

"We're all really excited," said Galloper. "I can't wait."

The Pioneers compiled a 8-2-1 record last year and hosted their own bowl game- the Campbell's Soup Bowl-which they were just edged out by Frostbite State, 347-12.

"The fact that they hosted the Soup Bowl helped them greatly in getting selected for the Classic," said WPC Athletic Director Art Eatsome.

The players were very excited when they heard the news.

"We're all really excited," said OLB Tom Horny. "I can't wait."

The players celebrated the selection by having a big party with lots of milk and cookies. (Some people tried to bring beer, but were asked to leave.)

"We're all really excited," said RB Al Wheat. "I can't wait."

Al was seen doing the Icky Shuffle shortly after he heard the news. After 20 minutes, he had to be restrained and calmed down.

"I sure hope Al is alright,"

The official Stranger replica of the 1940 Stan Laurel Cup was reported missing by team officials this past weekend. The replica, which is from the last Stranger championship 52 years ago, had apparently been lent to surviving members of the 1940 team for display at a charity benefit. The members reportedly then stopped at a bar and ordered a round of shots. It is believed the Cup was accidentally mistaken for a shot glass and removed by one of the patrons. Team executives state it is easy to distinguish the difference being that the replica is the exact size of the 1940 Cup and is therefore much smaller than a shot glass. Anyone with information concerning the perennial symbol of futility please contact Seymour Losing at the Garden.

In a surprise move late last night, the Dallas Cowmen rehired then fired ex-Cowman coach Thom Laundry. When asked about the move Dallas owner Jim Jones said "Well it was so much fun the first time I decided to do it again, besides it was classless and that is the type of image we need to uphold." Once again Laundry was notified by a reporter and not Jones himself. When contacted at a Hesse gas station, his current place of employment, Landry said "That's ok, at least I'm not the one who got my butt kicked in the playoffs."
