

The BULLETIN

WPC

VOL. 11, NO. 5

WILLIAM PATERSON COLLEGE

MAY 8, 1997

College Purchases New Building to House Art Department

"The purchase of a former manufacturing plant at 25 Power Avenue, across from College Hall on the south side of Hamburg Turnpike, will bring WPC's art program to new heights," says Peter Spiridon, vice president for administration and finance. The 42,600-square-foot building situated on 7.8 acres was bought recently for approximately $1,235,000 to provide studio space for the college's art department.

The building contains a glass walled front entry lined with office cubicles, a high-ceilinged open front area suitable for student gallery displays, and two huge 15-foot high warehouse areas which will serve as creative work areas for faculty and students.

(Continued on page 4)

Governor Whitman to Address Graduates

Governor Christine Todd Whitman, New Jersey's first female chief executive, will deliver the keynote

Bill Gotsch

Gov. Christine Todd Whitman

address to the graduating class at the 165th commencement on Monday, May 12th, which will begin at 10:30 am on Wightman Field.

Gov. Whitman will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree. An honorary doctor of laws degree also will be awarded to Senator John H. Ewing, (NJ) - Republican, 16th district), chair of the Senate Education Committee and chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Schools, for his 29 years of service in public office and commitment to education.

David H. Cheng, a member of the WPC Board of Trustees since 1990, will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters for his service to the college.

A total of 860 students are scheduled to receive degrees. Bachelor's degrees will be conferred upon 742 undergraduates; 118 students will receive master's degrees. All graduates will have completed their degree requirements between January and May, 1997.

(Continued on page 4)

Gimenez Named Dean of Continuing Education and Distance Learning

Rochelle Paris Gimenez has been named dean of continuing education and distance learning. She reports directly to Chernoh Sesay, provost and executive vice president.

"Dr. Gimenez will have the important job of establishing her division as a self-supporting operation and developing innovative strategies to successfully market the college's extension and continuing education offerings in cooperation with other staff and faculty," Sesay stated.

(Continued on page 6)

Bill Hirschbach
Rochelle Gimenez

Craig Phillips

College Purchases Building to House Art Studios: A former manufacturing plant on Power Avenue across Hamburg Turnpike from the college has been acquired to provide studio space for WPC's art department. The photo shows an exterior view of the front of the building. Behind the entrance area are two huge, high-ceilinged loft areas. The building should be ready for occupancy by the fall of 1998.

Inside

Focus on Nina Trelisky	Page 2
Summer Sessions	Page 3
University Status	Page 3
New Appointments	Page 6

FOCUS ON

Nina Trelisky: In Touch with Faith, Family and Profession

Nina Trelisky's daughter Amanda Nulman celebrated her Bat Mitzvah on May 28, 1995. But mom, WPC's associate registrar, beat her to the punch by three weeks. In 1993, Trelisky had decided to make the two-year commitment to prepare for the event she herself had not experienced as a teenager.

"The Bat Mitzvah ceremony is usually performed close to the 13th birthday, but more and more adult women are returning to class to complete the required study for this event," she says. Preparing meant not just religious studies but learning Hebrew, "a difficult language," admits Trelisky, who has achieved sufficient competency to read during Temple services. "It has its own alphabet, you read from right to left, and the vowels are below the consonants or missing altogether," she notes with a smile.

"It meant more to me than I thought it would," says Trelisky, who still meets several times a year with the group of women — teachers, administrators, business people, retirees — with whom she studied. "I made many friends, and we have stayed connected."

The second child and only daughter of Gussie Trelisky, who held a series of office jobs at a time when most women didn't work outside the home, and Dave Trelisky, a foreman for the Transit Authority, Nina was born in Brooklyn but grew up in Queens. Her brother Barry is now a computer programmer for the Transit Authority. She received her elementary education at P.S. 117, dubbed the "U.N." school because many of the children of the United Nations workers were her classmates. There she learned about other cultures and cuisines. "What is called 'diversity' today, I took for granted," she remarks. "My friends were Pakistani, Dutch, Chinese — you name it! Of course, I didn't have to learn about dim sum or chow fun. Chinese food was a family favorite."

It was the "baby boom" era, and Trelisky graduated from Jamaica High School in Queens as one of a class of 1,500 who had attended split shifts because of insufficient classroom space. She then enrolled in fledgling York College (CUNY), majoring in political science and minoring in anthropology, and was part of its second graduating class.

They were called the "nomads," she remembers, because they were moved around so much until the York campus in Jamaica was completed. It was a true urban college, different from traditional suburban campuses. "When the EL roared by, right over our heads, all classroom instruction stopped until the building stopped vibrating and we could hear each other speak again."

As a senior at York, Trelisky got a job as a student assistant in the registrar's office. She started graduate school but "my mother died in 1972 and I needed some time to get my life together," so she took a job at CUNY headquarters on East 80th Street. Part of this job was compiling statistics. "I had always loved math as well as political science, but as a girl was never encouraged to look at a career in math, so this was a good training ground," she acknowledges.

During this time, she met her future husband Jeff Nulman, a special education teacher and a member of the Army Reserve. "Although I liked him immediately," she says, "at first I didn't think this relationship was going to work, because he refused to eat Chinese food!" However, they were married on Memorial Day weekend, 1976, and moved into a sixth-floor walkup in a pre-war apartment in the Bronx. After that they moved to the 'fancy side' of Pelham Parkway and later bought a house in Rockland County, New York shortly after the birth of their first child, Seth Nulman, in 1979.

Trelisky was back working at the York College registrar's office at this time, and the two-hour commute, with an infant at home, was too great a burden. She applied at WPC and was hired as an assistant registrar. "The 40-mile round-trip commute was much more manageable," she says, "and I was incredibly fortunate to find a babysitter I loved and trusted. The caregiver, who had twins of her own and bred collies, took good care of Seth and Amanda, who was born in 1982.

Both Seth and Amanda have grown up as caring young people aware of the problems and needs of others. Seth, due to graduate in June, has been a part of a school-sponsored group, "The Ramapo Children of Chernobyl Fund" which raises money for vitamins, medical supplies and other necessities for the young victims of that nuclear disaster. Last year, he traveled with the group to Belarus to deliver these supplies and to provide "rock and roll" shows for children in hospitals, troops in military camps, embassy staffers, and

(Continued on page 6)

WPC Makes Changes in Summer Sessions

Administrative changes for the upcoming summer sessions have increased the number of courses by 20 percent available to students and have equalized the number of sessions, based on recommendations from the Summer Session Task Force, chaired by Jane Voos, biology.

Chief among the changes is an equalization of class time to 23 meetings in each session. Previously, classes met fewer times in the first session than the second. For the first time, faculty will receive equal pay for the sessions. Courses have been extensively advertised in college and university newspapers in nearby states, and flyers have been distributed in all area high schools and community colleges.

The registration process has also been streamlined to make it easier for students. Information about the summer session courses is now available on the WPC Homepage, listed under Student Life, a new feature this session. Students, who may take up to two courses in each session, can retrieve information online about the courses they select, including such previously unavailable information as maximum enrollment and the current number of students enrolled in a class. Additionally, the course selections are linked to the WPC course catalog, now on-line, which contains more extensive descriptions of the courses offered.

This Internet connection gives WPC students as well as prospective students from other colleges and universities much more extensive information than was readily available before. Students can access the WPC Homepage from numerous sites on campus including the Atrium, the library, the Science Hall, Raubinger Hall, and Hunziker Wing. The Tower Residence Halls are wired as is a new lab located in Hobart Hall, but they are not expected to be available until fall.

Jane Voos

Voos explained a survey was distributed to faculty in February about various revisions to the summer sessions, including the possible conversion of the school year to include a regular third semester over a 12-week period in the summer. Faculty were also surveyed about their preferences about teaching in summer sessions and other issues concerning the sessions.

"The committee will analyze the responses and then make a recommendation to the provost," Voos said.

In addition to Voos, the members of the Task Force are: Julie Barrier, continuing education; Stephen Bolyai, business services; Mark Evangelista, registrar; Rochelle Kaplan, curriculum and instruction; Sandeep Maheshwari, mathematics; Gary Radford, communication; William Rosa, languages and cultures; and Michael Seda, accounting and law.

Plans for the summer 1998 sessions are not finalized yet and will, in part, be based on the results of the survey. "The thrust is to let students finish faster, and make it possible to get their degree in a timely fashion," Voos said.

WPC AND SETON HALL UNIVERSITY sign an articulation agreement to facilitate admission of WPC accounting graduates to the graduate business program at Seton Hall where they can fulfill requirements to sit for the CPA exam. From left, seated, are Frank Grippo, associate dean of the division of business, School of Humanities, Management and Social Sciences; Chernoh Sesay, provost and executive vice president; and James Greenspan, chairman, department of accounting, Seton Hall. Standing are the first two entrants into the Seton Hall program, Peter Boland and Catherine Maxwell.

University Status

Nina Jemmott, associate vice president for graduate studies, research and academic administration, will head a 24-member university status transition team representing different campus constituencies.

Appointed by Chernoh Sesay, provost and executive vice president, the team will deal with both short- and long-term goals. Planning will be tied to themes recommended by the Future Search Conference, says Jemmott, and will look at areas included in the petition for university status including the institution's organizational structure and programs, admission standards, resources, and the impact of university status on the college's infrastructure and external constituencies.

The Commission on Higher Education is expected to vote on May 23 on the college's petition for university status.

Nina Jemmott

Retirees to be Honored

A gala spring festival and retirement celebration will be held on May 15 to honor members of the college community who retired during the current academic year. Retirees from past years also are invited to attend.

The affair, sponsored by the president and provost and executive vice president in connection with the faculty development committee, will be held at the Tides on Belmont Avenue in North Haledon at 6 pm.

Among those to be honored are Elena Choque, Karl Lunde, Suzanne Hawes, Virginia Mollenkott, Soon Man Rhim, Jane Weidensaul and Edith Wallace.

The cost is $25 per person, and reservations are required. Checks should be made out to Vince Baldassano, who is coordinating the event together with Marion Turkish, and sent to him at the provost's office in Raubinger Hall.

Whitman (Continued from page 1)

President Arnold Speert will address the graduating class along with Anne Li, senior class president, who will deliver the statement for the Class of 1997.

Doris White, senior faculty member and professor of curriculum and instruction, will lead the academic procession to Wightman Field in her role as college marshal. Graduates will be recognized by school and major and will proceed to the platform, where the school dean will award the diploma. Receptions for students, faculty and guests will be held in the Student Center following commencement activities.

Elected in 1993, Gov. Whitman has announced her candidacy for reelection and is considered one of the Republicans' rising stars. In a few short years, she rose from Somerset County freeholder to be the 50th governor of New Jersey, and has been frequently mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate. During her tenure, she restructured the state's higher education governance system, giving greater control to colleges and universities.

Born in New York City and raised in Hunterdon County, Gov. Whitman, her husband John and their two children live in Oldwick.

Ewing, who was elected to the Senate in 1977, has dedicated his legislative career to the advancement of public and private education. The Senator's educational enactments include the Charter School Program Act of 1995, the Higher Education Restructuring Act of 1994 and the Public School Forum Act of 1992. Ewing is a former member of the Assembly Education Committee, and previously served as state assemblyman and freeholder.

Cheng is dean emeritus of engineering, the City University of New York (CUNY). An expert in structural mechanics, he has conducted research on sonic boom problems for NASA and on long suspension bridges for the department of transportation in Virginia. Cheng received a Ph.D. from Columbia University and heads his own consulting company, Techtran, Inc.

In the event of rain, the commencement will be held Tuesday, May 13, also at 10:30 a.m.

Art Building (Continued from page 1)

When the building is ready for occupancy in the fall of 1998, the loft areas will be available for faculty and students for projects appropriate to three-dimensional arts, printmaking and other techniques which require large working areas and appropriate heating and ventilation systems. The property provides plenty of parking and will also be served by the Pioneer Shuttle. Already landscaped with mature bushes and trees, the lawn area will be ideal for outdoor sketching and painting in good weather.

Explaining the need for the new building, Spiridon points out that Ben Shahn Center for the Visual Arts was constructed in the early '70s at a time when the college was basically geared to teacher training. Ben Shahn now needs extensive and prohibitively expensive restructuring to be made dust-free and climate controlled under today's stringent environmental guidelines. Even if this were feasible, the project would require shutting down the art program for more than a full academic year.

The Galleries will remain in Ben Shahn, as will undergraduate classes in basic art techniques, art history offerings and some art faculty offices. Computer graphics will also stay at Ben Shahn. At this time, plans call for relocating the athletic department to the lower level of the building, convenient to the playing fields, says Spiridon.

Alan Lazarus, interim dean of the School of Arts and Communication, is enthusiastic about the possibilities offered by the new building. "Because of its size and scale, the art department offerings will no longer be limited by traditional offerings. It is a much more realistic setting," he says. Lazarus sees the building as a place of collaboration between art and other Arts and Communication offerings, linked through technology. Particularly with the proposed establishment of an MFA and an MM in progress, the loft spaces will allow for the collaboration of faculty and visiting artists to take on student interns who will have an opportunity to invest in the process of creation, "to create a more traditional artist/student mentorship role."

Alumni Association to Award Grants and Scholarship

The WPC Alumni Association has $33,000 in grant money available for eligible applicants including students, faculty and professional staff members. Grant funds must be used for projects, programs, or events which directly benefit the college. The money will be distributed for use in the fall 1997 semester. Deadline for submission is May 30.

New this year is the WPC Alumni Family Member Scholarship, valued at $3,380 per year, intended for an immediate family member of an alumni who plans to attend WPC. Applicants must be full time freshmen, sophomores or juniors with a 3.0 GPA and participate in extra-curricular activities. Deadline for applications is May 23. For additional information, please call the Alumni Association at 595-2175.

MARTIN KRIVIN HONORED: Martin Krivin (left) is congratulated by President Arnold Speert for his many years of campus and community service. Krivin, who was a member of the music department from 1960 to 1992 and one of the founders of the Wayne Chamber Orchestra, holds the plaque which was presented to him at a reception held in his honor.

Robert Seal Appointed Executive Assistant to Provost

Robert K. Seal has been named executive assistant to Chernoh Sesay, executive vice president and provost. He will oversee the college's retention and advisement efforts and assume other duties assigned by the provost.

Seal comes to WPC with an extensive background in academe, research, and administration. Most recently, in 1996, he was assistant dean of the faculty at Stevens Institute of Technology. Prior to that, he was a senior research associate for the New Jersey Institute for Collegiate Teaching and Learning at Seton Hall University from 1992 to 1996. Seal served as assistant to the dean of the School of Education at The College of William and Mary from 1987 to 1990, where earlier he was a statistician in the Office of Institutional Research from 1986 to 1987. Currently, Seal is a member of the adjunct faculty at Seton Hall University where he teaches a course in curriculum and instruction in higher education.

An author who has published monographs on faculty and student issues, he is currently working on two books which he expects will be published later this year.

Seal holds a doctorate in higher education, an Ed.S as an educational specialist, a master's degree in educational administration, and a bachelor's degree in psychology and music, all from The College of William and Mary.

He is a member of the American Association for Higher Education, the Association for the Study of Higher Education, the Association of Institutional Research and the Professional and Organizational Development Network in Higher Education.

Robert Seal

Mary Lee Fitzgerald Joins WPC

Mary Lee Fitzgerald, former commissioner of the New Jersey State Department of Education, has joined the college as an academic consultant and professor in the curriculum and instruction department of the School of Education.

"We are delighted Dr. Fitzgerald has agreed to work with us at this particularly critical period for public school education in America," said WPC President Arnold Speert. "She is an outstanding expert in the field with great depth of experience not only as commissioner but also as superintendent of the Montclair Public Schools and as a principal and teacher."

Before coming to William Paterson, Fitzgerald was a senior fellow at the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and former director of the Principals' Center for the Garden State.

During her 10-year tenure in Montclair, she established a widely acclaimed intradistrict school choice program and led efforts to enhance parent participation and school-based decision making in the district. She also created full-day prekindergarten and kindergarten programs in all Montclair elementary schools and an expanded day option for working parents.

Fitzgerald began her career in education as a teacher in the rural mining community of Eagle Valley, Colorado, and later taught in Topeka, Kansas, city schools. She served as an assistant superintendent in the Norwalk Public Schools, Norwalk, Connecticut, and in the Paradise Valley School District Number 69, Phoenix, Arizona.

In 1987, Fitzgerald chaired New Jersey's statewide panel on high school proficiencies which recommended the process by which the State Board of Education has established content standards for required high school courses. She also has served as a member of the State Board of Examiners since 1990 and is a National Endowment for the Humanities fellow.

Born on March 25, 1936 in St. Louis, Missouri, Fitzgerald was educated in public schools in Arizona and California. She received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Arizona in 1958, a master's degree in 1963 from the University of Colorado and her doctorate in 1977 from Rutgers University. She also has attended the University of Southern California, Princeton Theological Seminary and Stanford University.

Fitzgerald has two children and seven stepchildren. She and her husband, J. Martin Comey, reside in Glen Ridge.

Mary Lee Fitzgerald

Baumel Named Financial Aid Director

Robert Baumel has been appointed director of financial aid. He served as project specialist and then as assistant director in the department before his recent appointment.

Before coming to WPC in 1995, Baumel was financial aid director at FDU's campus in Madison, and was assistant director of financial aid at Richard Stockton State College.

Baumel earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from SUNY-Oneonta and is currently working towards a master's degree in education from Fairleigh Dickinson University, expected in December after completion of a thesis which will examine resources for educators on the Internet.

Robert Baumel

Trelisky

(Continued from page 2)

even for the Prime Minister and TV. Amanda, who is a member of the Pomona Junior High School Honor Society and has a job as a student assistant in the mathematics department, does publicity and fundraising to collect teddy bears for the Chernobyl children.

The kids are into sports, so Jeff and Nina often have to draw straws over which parent is to attend which soccer match. The family are avid Yankee fans, and WPC head baseball coach Jeff Albies, who is often on the phone with Trelisky, says she is "extremely helpful" in working out problems involving WPC's student athletes. "She's legit", and she's a pro," he says. Trelisky also does crochet and needlepoint and loves to cook — not necessarily everyday suppers, but celebrations, where family and friends gather and she can serve her memorable brisket, stuffed cabbage and rugulah.

Since 1980, when Trelisky joined the staff of registrar Mark Evangelista, the office has been relocated four times, from Hobart Manor to Raubinger Hall and then again within Raubinger during architectural renovations, and most recently, to College Hall.

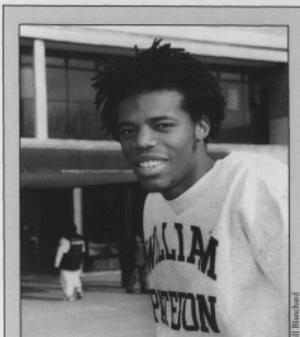

In the early '80s when data processing was a completely centralized operation, Trelisky was the computer liaison for the registrar's office. "Nina was part of a project team that designed and wrote the first terminal-based online registration system at the college," says Len Bogdon, director of information management systems. "She became a project team leader for the implementation of the Student Information System (SIS) in 1987 and has been key to the success of the SIS ever since."

Trelisky has been associate registrar since 1992, when her duties and responsibilities were expanded as technology became an integral part of registration. "The registrar's office is the record-keeper for the college," she explains. "We register students, verify enrollment, record grades and grade changes, schedule classes, publish the master schedule, do degree audits for students ready to graduate, apply transfer credits, send out transcripts and assist other offices in recording and implementing policies." There are five assistant registrars, each with specific duties, and support staff. They are cross-trained, she explains, and may be called to assist as needed for major projects.

As a project team leader, Trelisky has become part computer programmer, database administrator, data security officer and is still the liaison to what is now Information Systems for the registrar's office, notes Bogdon. "Nina has expert knowledge of student records data and the ability to readily access information to make decisions and take actions."

"Today we have phone-in registration and shortly students will be able to call in for their grades," says Trelisky. "This cuts down on lines and in-person visits. Our student population is changing — they have jobs, elderly parents and young children to care for. Voice response is an important part of meeting their needs." Trelisky notes that her office staff has an excellent working relationship with the programmers. "We try to use technology creatively. There are jobs computers are better for — and this is one. However, it will never take the place of good advisement or personal attention in problem solving."

WPC STUDENT TO APPEAR ON JEOPARDY: Oliver Baptist, a senior at WPC, is one of 15 college students chosen nationwide to compete on "Jeopardy's College Championship" television game show. The program will broadcast beginning the week of May 12.

Gimenez

(Continued from page 1)

"In addition, she will provide leadership for the development and offering of innovative and successful credit and non-credit educational programs for adult and place-bound learners at both the undergraduate and graduate levels," he added.

Gimenez, who assumed her new role March 3, will promote the effective use of distance learning technologies, and develop and maintain strategic partnerships with community, business, and other educational groups.

Before coming to WPC, Gimenez was director of the Center for Training and Educational Development at Governors State University in University Park, Illinois, from 1995 to 1997. From 1990 to 1995, she was coordinator of continuing education at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Other positions held by Gimenez include counselor, advisor and publications coordinator of new student admission services at Southern Illinois University from 1987 to 1990. During this period, she also was co-director and instructor of the continuing education Elderhostel program in Oaxaca, Mexico.

Her varied career also has included positions as a freelance management consultant, teaching positions at Southern Illinois University, manager of a skating rink in Carbondale, Illinois, supervisor and bank balancer for United Computer Services in Marion, Illinois, and a three-year stint as the owner, operator and manager of a small business in Managua, Nicaragua.

Bilingual in English and Spanish, Gimenez obtained a B.S. in applied technical studies, a M.S. in occupational education, and a Ph.D. in community health education, all from Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

BOARD NOTES

The Board of Trustees held a public meeting on Saturday, February 22, 1997 in the College Hall Board Room, at which time the members approved revised by-laws in accordance with the Higher Education Restructuring Act of 1994 which broadened the role and responsibilities of college Boards of Trustees. The trustees authorized the president to facilitate acquisition of the building and property located at 25 Power Avenue, Wayne. Sonia Rosado was sworn in as the board's newest member.

Personnel Matters

FACULTY PROMOTIONS

Effective Sept. 1, 1997

From Assistant Professor to Associate Professor

*Barbara Bohny
Eileen Gardner
Carole Gelfer
Joanna Hayden
Tina Leshner
Marcello Llarull

Daniel Meaders
Barbara Parker
Gary Radford
Lance Risley
Sam Robinson

From Associate Professor to Professor

Robert Bing
Edward Burns
David Demsey
Danielle Desroches
Catarina Edinger
Charley Flint

Stephen Hahn
Jean Levitan
Janet Pollak
Isabel Tirado
Shelley Wepner

*Administrative promotion with concurrence of union

Administrative promotion

Barbara Bohny

Eileen Gardner

Carole Gelfer

Robert Bing

David Demsey

Danielle Desroches

Joanna Hayden

Tina Leshner

Marcello Llarull

Catarina Edinger

Charley Flint

Stephen Hahn

Daniel Meaders

Barbara Parker

Gary Radford

Jean Levitan

Janet Pollak

Isabel Tirado

Lance Risley

Sam Robinson

Shelley Wepner

+Photo of Ed Burns not available

FACULTY REAPPOINTMENTS Sept. 1, 1997-June 30, 1998

Jamshedd Akrami, Assistant Professor, Communication
*Barbara Bohny, Associate Professor, Nursing
Mathilda Catarina, Associate Professor, Special Education and Counseling
Andrew Chirwa, Instructor, Curriculum and Instruction
Joanne Cho, Assistant Professor, History
Gerti Christoffersen, Assistant Professor, Nursing
Ronald Curtis, Assistant Professor, Computer Science
Angela DeLaura, Assistant Professor, Art
Mark Ellis, Instructor, Sociology
Darlene Ferguson-Russell, Instructor, Curriculum and Instruction
Garth Gardner, Assistant Professor, Art
Linda Gazzillo, Instructor, Exercise and Movement Sciences
Evelyn Gonzalez, Assistant Professor, History
Richard Lawson, Assistant Professor, Marketing and Management Sciences
Han Joo Lee, Assistant Professor, Exercise and Movement Sciences
Joan Lesikin, Assistant Professor, Languages and Cultures
Casey Man Kong Lum, Assistant Professor, Communication
Jaishri Menon, Assistant Professor, Biology
Andrew Nyaboga, Instructor, Accounting and Law
Arlene Scala, Assistant Professor, Women's Studies
Daphne Shah, Assistant Professor, Nursing
Bogong Su, Assistant Professor, Computer Science
Karen Swanson, Assistant Professor, Environmental Sciences/Geography
Hector Vila, Instructor, English
Gabe Tiande Wang, Assistant Professor, Sociology
Lianzan Xu, Assistant Professor, Accounting and Law
*creates tenure status

PART TIME FACULTY RECOMMENDED FOR REAPPOINTMENT Academic Year 1997-98

Colleen Barbarito, Assistant Professor, Nursing
Murray Colosimo, Instructor, Music
Vicki Lynn Coyle, Instructor, Nursing
Joan Griscom, Assistant Professor, Women's Studies
Hollie Heller-Ramsay, Assistant Professor, Art
Cheryl Hollema, Instructor, Nursing
David Horton, Assistant Professor, Art
Carol Ann Mahoney, Assistant Professor, Nursing

Mary McElgunn, Assistant Professor, Nursing
Linda Parry-Carney, Instructor, Nursing

LIBRARY STAFF RECOMMENDED FOR REAPPOINTMENT July 1, 1997-June 30, 1998

Ya'aqov Ziso, Librarian II

PROFESSIONAL STAFF REAPPOINTMENTS July 1, 1997 - June 30, 1998

Natalie Ellis, Resident Director
Nicole Files, Resident Director
Justine Dermer Girellini, Assistant Director of Admissions
Theresa Hurtado, Program Assistant
Jennifer Kilroy-Tobin, Area Coordinator
John Messina, Area Coordinator
Stephanie Mykiety, Publications Writer/Editor
Chutchawal Petchor, Assistant Director, Financial Aid
Robert Pileggi, Resident Director
Mukesh Sahni, Safety Compliance Officer
Brian Woods, Head Coach, Men's and Women's Soccer

EXTENSIONS OF APPOINTMENT

Nancy Norris-Bauer, Associate Director of Certification, Curriculum and Instruction, School of Education, 1/19/97-6/30/97
Paul Younghouse, School Support Specialist, Instruction and Research Technology, 12/5/96-12/20/96

CHANGES IN STATUS

Fabio Federico, School Support Specialist, School of Education, effective 10/7/96-6/30/97
Terrence Finnegan, Assistant Professor, History, effective 9/1/96
Cira Fraser, from Assistant Professor (half title) to Assistant Professor (full time, grant funded, spring semester only), Nursing, 1/13/97-6/30/97
Pam Fueshko, Executive Assistant for Administration and Finance, effective 1/2/97
Paulette Brower-Garret, Assistant Director, Advisement, effective 1/2/97
Judith Gazdag, from Director, Advisement to Director, Advisement and Academic Support Services, effective 1/2/97
Ray Martinez, Assistant Director, Advisement, effective 1/2/97
Lester McKee, from Interim Director to Director, Minority Education, 1/2/97
Mary Ann Spatz, from Assistant Director, Academic Support, to Associate Director, Advisement and Academic Support Services, effective 1/2/97
Roland Watts, from Assistant Dean of Students to Interim Dean of Students, Student Development, 1/2/97-6/30/97

Gloria Williams, from Assistant Director, Advisement, to Associate Director, Advisement and Academic Support Services, 1/2/97

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Barbara Bakst, Director, Public Information, 9/1/97-12/31/97
Joanne Cho, Assistant Professor, History, 9/1/97-1/12/98
Sally Hand, Professor, English, 1/13/97-5/2/97
John Livingston, Associate Professor, History, 1/13/97-5/2/97
Marie Montequado, Librarian II, Library, 5/15/97-5/15/98

RETIREMENT

Soon Man Rhim, Professor, Sociology, 7/1/97

RESIGNATIONS

Vered Mencil, Instructor, Communication, 1/30/97
Alfred Vizzone, Support Specialist, Arts and Communication, 1/17/97

ATHLETIC APPOINTMENTS

Shantay Brame, Assistant Track Coach, 1/2/97-5/31/97
John Brennan, Assistant Track Coach, 1/2/97-5/31/97

The BULLETIN

VOL. 11, NO. 5 MAY 8, 1997

Produced by the Department of College Relations.

Office of Public Information:

Editor: Barbara Bakst
Managing Editor: Dianne Franconeri
Associate Editor: Mary Beth Zeman
Contributing Writers: Barbara Martin,
Joseph Martinelli, Terry Ross

Office of Publications:

Publisher: Lorraine Terraneo
Design: Bob Verbeck

Office of Public Information
College Hall 240, 595-2971
Printed on recycled paper.