WPC will finally gain university status next semester, said Minister of College Misinformation Dennis Canttellyou. The new name, announced today, will be Arnie Sneer's Chaotic University (ASCU—pronounced askew).

Sneer has been working toward this goal since he became WPC president several years ago, Canttellyou said. He made it his top priority during his presidential candidacy.

"It is for the betterment of the college, per se, to become a university," Canttellyou said. "But I really have no other comment on that matter, if that matter even exists."

More restructuring will have to take place during the transformation from WPC into ASCU, said Anymore Smut, vice president for Academic Adulteries. Not only will the college be restructured from seven schools into four, as was originally planned, but the campus buildings and their functions will also be restructured.

"The Student Center will become President Sneer's temporary home," Smut said. "He will need to reside on campus

"I realize this may pose a teeny weenie inconvenience for students, faculty, and staff, but hey, they'll just have to deal with it."

throughout the time of the restructuring, so he can make sure no one misspells his name, or that of the university, on the new letterhead."

Smut and the other college vice presidents will also be required to be on campus full-time next year, Smut said. Anchovy Lollipop, vice president of Embroilment Management and Student Screwups, will move into Heritage Hall for the duration. Peter Smeariton, vice president of Ad Nauseum and Facetiousness, will reside in Pioneer Hall. Smut herself will move into South Tower. All students presently living in those buildings will be moved into North Tower, Matelson and White halls, and the Repair Shop (located behind Raubinger Hall). Six students will reside in each room.

This arrangement has raised some questions about where the faculty and student services offices (presently located in Matelson and White) will be moved. Smut was asked about this at a press conference today.

"We have faculty and offices in those buildings?" Smut asked.

"I realize this may pose a teeny weenie inconvenience for students, faculty, and staff, but hey, they'll just have to deal with it," Smut said. "The university will benefit in the long run, even if there are no students attending and no faculty teaching."

Sneer met with student leaders prior to today's announcement, to ask them for student input.

"I just told him, this just is not fair to the students," said Dude Skunkcabbage, Student Pandemonium Association president. "I mean, why is President Sneer's name in the title and not mine?"

The Board of Betrayers voted last night to let Sneer make this decision on his own, said Retch McFarfetched, student misrepresentative to the board.

"The board members figured Arnie was capable of it, and we didn't want to be bothered with this decision," McFarfetched said. "Of course, I'm a non-voting member, but I tried to talk the board into putting a student's name in the title instead. Yeah, I could see Retch McFarfetched University, couldn't you?"

As of next fall, all the college's university's letterhead will have the new name on it, Smeariton said. The cost of these changes will come out of a new fee created specifically for this purpose, the Students-Pay-For-It-All Fee.

Fornication takeover hailed

By Brewski H. Soldoff
STAPH GOSSIPER

President Arnold Sneer announced Friday that he is officially taking over the WPC Fornication for his own purposes.

Currently, the Fornication exists as a separate corporation from the college, contracted by the college to mismanage the operations of the Stupid Center and the Wreck Center. The Fornication is also responsible for the mismanagement of the Crookstore, vomitorium, campus narcade, and other disservices offered by the college.

The takeover is scheduled to be completed by August 1991, Sneer said. It is unknown as to how long this plan has been in the discussion stages, said Minister of College Misinformation, Dennis Canttellyou. Canttellyou did say that Sneer was acting very strange about a week before the announcement.

"This move was a step in the direction to change WPC to ASCU (Arnie Sneer's Chaotic University)," said former Student Pandemonium Association President, Muskrat Saidhe-didntdoit. "It is so obvious what he is doing here, that any moron could figure it out."

"There is a very simple reason why Sneer is doing this," Canttellyou said. "He eventually wants to be in charge of the whole shebang, y'know, the whole bowl of wax."

The tentative plan is that Sneer will be the prime minister and Canttellyou will be the executioner/vice president.
COPYRIGHT 1991, VOL. 58, NO. 3

Sneer said.

"This new arrangement is excellent," Sneer said. "I always wanted to see what totalitarianism is like."

"I am very pleased with this arrangement as well," Canttellyou said.

Not everyone is happy about this though. Sneer did not even check with the Board of Betrayers, said Fornication Director Joseph Banished.

"I think that this arrangement really rots," Banished said. "I have vegetated at this college for many years, then he [Sneer] has the audacity to can me. Damn him!"

"Banished is not the only one who is ticked off," said Student Pandemonium Association President Dude Skunkcabbage. "Sneer has a lot of gall to not include my name in the school's name."

A Short history of The Bacon

It all started a long, long time ago. It seems there was a radio station on the campus of a small state college in New Jersey, and this radio station adopted a mascot, the Party Pig.

The Party Pig was discovered by a disc jockey who worked at the radio station, WPFC (Where Pigs Fly Constantly). This disc jockey, Nick, was taking a stroll along the cliffs located on campus, when he noticed a large pink being crouching on the edge of a cliff. Nick, being very observant, noticed that this pink being was a pig, and a suicidal pig at that.

"Oh suicidal pig, whatever are you doing?" Nick asked.

The pig jumped, startled at hearing this voice. He almost fell off the cliff, but Nick reached out in the nick of time and saved the pig.

"You saved my life!" the no-longer-suicidal pig exclaimed. "I was going to jump, but almost falling convinced me that dying wouldn't have been very fun. Thank you for making me see the light."

"Why were you going to jump?" Nick asked.

"My life is horrible. My parents kicked me out of the sty, saying that I was the black pig of the family," the pig moaned. "And I got kicked out of the dorms for partying."

"Let me get this straight," Nick said. "You're the black pig of the family? And you lived in the dorms but got kicked out for throwing a party?"

"First of all, black sheep, black pig, it means the same thing, it's just different species," the pig said. "Secondly, yes I lived in the dorms. Why, do you have a problem with inter-species living?"

"No. I just never saw you there," Nick said. "So, you're a party pig, huh?"

And so, the pig was dubbed Party Pig. And because Party Pig had no family, WPFC adopted him. Party Pig appreciated this gesture so much that he listened to WPFC all the time, even when he was in the bath. Unfortunately, one time, while Party Pig was in the bath, the radio fell into the water.

Party Pig became Bacon.

The folks at WPFC couldn't deal with Bacon; they wanted their Party Pig back. So they left Bacon on the doorstep of the campus newspaper office, figuring those journalistic types could find some way to handle this tragedy.

Those journalistic types did. They decided to publish one newspaper per year in honor of Bacon. And so, The Bacon was born. Pretty silly story, huh?

WPC'S SPECIAL "QUICKIE" HOME DELIVERY SERVICE OF ALL REFUNDS.

Cash-raising planned amid cuts

By Al E. Kat
INSIDE-OUT EDITOR

Following even more major funding cutbacks from the state, Vice President of Ad Nauseum and Facetiousness Geek Smeariton announced plans to raise money for WPC.

"The state has been blowing us off each time we ask for funding, so we decided to utilize our talents and resources to raise some serious cash for this institution," Smeariton said.

Some tentative plans include:

- * A $5 toll for students wishing to cross the new bridge to Hobart Stall.

- "Hey, you don't have to use the bridge; one could always risk the run across Pompous Road," Smeariton said.

- * "I think that now would be a good time to lay off some maintenance people, since all of the work on my house is done," Smeariton said.

- * Because the campus is "darn near empty" during the summer months, Smeariton advocates renting out some of the less-used facilities.

- "Ringling Brothers is going to use Hobart Manor as the site for their next circus," he said.

- * In the summer months, WPC will be leasing its classrooms to other colleges.

- "Hopefully they will have a real school of management, that way the students can take their courses, pay tuition to us and we'll keep the money," Smeariton explained.

- * The recently built greenhouse which is between the art and science buildings will be under the direction of Professor Partyman (Psychosis Department).

"We plan to make this one a profitable endeavor" said the new director. See any NOR-MAL member for details.

Fornication

- * "Now that we have control of the Student Center Fornication we plan to rent the crook store out to a better, more expensive company who we can make some major profits off of," Smeariton said.

- * Hiring the football team to put on a male-review in Silly Pat's.

- "This way we can keep money from the show and the team can earn those expensive uniforms that they usually get for free," Smeariton said.

When questioned about the exploitative nature of this plan, Smeariton exclaimed "we wouldn't dream of exploiting our students!"

The team members would be able to keep any tips they earn, said Silly Pat's manager, Mark DaGuido.

- * The Arcade will be renovated this summer to make room for blackjack and craps tables.

- "This will benefit the students in a couple of ways; besides the entertainment value, it will also create jobs for the students so that they can earn money for all the tuition increases we plan to bombard them with," Smeariton said laughingly.

Residence Strife

- * Residence Strife Director

Roland Rotts suggested installing coin-operated vibrating beds in the Towers facility.

"Believe me, those groups that stay here in the summer months alone will make us a mint."

- * Rotts also plans to use the beer bottles and cans from students for the deposit money.

"This is why we don't allow students to have kegs/beer balls; it's just not profitable," he said.

Plans for money

"Well since it was mostly my idea," Smeariton said, "I'm getting a new car first. Then I'm gonna buy lollipops for all the students on the first day of school, just in case they're mad about this week's tuition increase."

Sources say SGA cheating unintended

By Dino Moskovitz
CRAPPY EDITOR

A startling development has surfaced in the disruptive scandals circulating through the Student Pandemonium Association. The troubles within the SPA initially erupted upon the discovery of improprieties in the election of two of the top offices in the organization. According to sources who wished to remain anonymous (but you can guess) the cheating for the positions were, in fact, unintentional. The source went further to say that not one of the parties involved were behaving in their usual states of minds.

"The whole thing was a farce," the source revealed. "It sounds hard to believe, but it was not really Murray Saidhedidntdoit (Mutrat) who put the extra ballots in the box for his friend, Tellinit Kissassman."

Kissassman is former Executive Vice Pretender of the SPA.

According to the source, when Mutrat resigned from his office as Head Pretender in order to get Kissassman to leave, he was also behaving outside of his normal pattern.

The source was also asked about the election of Retch McFarfetched, student misrepsentative to the board of betrayers, which also came under investigation.

"It's the same situation with him," the source said flatly. "Couldn't you tell? I mean Retch's reputation is that of a responsible, self-respecting gentleman. These men, Mutrat, McFarfetched, and Kissassman are all upstanding members of this college community. We're anxious to find out what made them go awry."

The Bacon was unable to gather all three gentlemen for an exclusive interview. Kissassman, McFarfetched, and Saidhedidntdoit were all unavailable for comment. It seems they were on a camping trip.

Dear Piggy

Advice Column

Dear Piggy,

I thought I was in hog heaven when I met Mutrat. He was the perfect rodent. We did everything together. We even slept in the same pen. We were the best together. Closer than any two boars rolling in fresh mud on a sunny afternoon. It was all mud and fun until I discovered what a real rat he was.

I was running for vice president of the Social Gluttony Association at Willy Pat's College. Knowing I didn't have a chance to win, he stuffed my ballot box with extra votes. He had no confidence in me. He later told me of this and I squealed it out a month later while we were in the throws of a deed argument in front of Dean Broccoli, the Grand Boar. I told him everything. A big scandal broke out and my poor Mutrat was labeled a cheater. He lost his presidency of the association and I resigned my position. Now I've lost the best thing that could have ever happened to me. I lay in the pen at night alone now thinking of Mutrat.

I feel so alone now since everyone looks at me with loathing. I realize I can't live without my Mutrat. What can I do to get him back? I need him desperately.

oink oink,
Kissassman

Dear Assman,

You had a very tough decision to make, sacrificing the love you had for Mutrat for the truth. This rat did not have you in mind. It seems to me he was only thinking of himself. You squeezed his cheese real good. I just hope he realizes cheaters never win. Forget Mutrat and find yourself a new rat with an honest cheese.

Dear Piggy,

I'm sick and tired of people on this campus. All they do is complain about everything. I should have followed Dan Quayle's advice when he told me to take the vice presidency position instead of the president's office. I really envy him. He gets to play tennis and hang around movie stars. He even did an appearance on a TV show.

Me, I'm stuck here at Willy Pat's College with a bunch of people who don't appreciate my talent. I mean I give them what they want but they still complain. I raise their tuition, combined the School of Business with the School of Humanities and even tried to fire some teachers in December. I figure I would decrease the faculty so they could graduate in five years. That way, they could spend more time with me and I could get their tuition money to construct that big statue of myself and place it in the Student Center so they could worship me. That is all I ask for, a little recognition of my hard work. You would think they would nominate me for sainthood. Do you think that is too much to ask for?

oink oink,
President Sneer

Dear President Sneer,

You are right. It isn't too much to ask for. What I suggest you do however is get off your big, fat pork buns and demand them to worship you. If that doesn't work, threaten them. Tell them you are going to lower tuition and that you will build a brand new parking lot with your own salary. Then when you see big smiles on their faces, you can say, "Psych, I was just kidding."

Banished uncertain of takeover's effects

There are no definite plans as to how much change the Fornication is expected to undergo. However, Sneer does plan to bump off the Fornication's current Bored of Misdirectors, Canttellyou said. They don't know who else will be canned.

"There is no telling what that fascist will do," Banished said. "Who knows what Sneer will do with the slaves who worked under me, can them too?"

"As far as any possible budget cuts are concerned," Canttellyou said, "I can't tell you."

Sneer did say that the Student Pandemonium Association will remain independent despite his coup d'etat.

Pass/Fail voted out

By Brewski H. Soldoff

STAPH GOSSIPER

The Faculty Congress on Tuesday made a decree which would annihilate the pass/fail option from all low-level courses. This decree came about after students spoke for and against the change in campus laws. Members of the faculty argued both for and against this as well.

"I am for this change in laws," said Professor of Proctology Goliath Buttocks. "I am sick and tired of those students who take my courses pass/fail, and then blow them off daily, and when they do come to class, they just screw around and take up space. The thing that pisses me off the most is that they really don't give a damn!"

"What makes matters worse is that the students use it as a way to get college credits without screwing up their GPA, no matter how well (or how lousy) they do," said Professor of Psychopathology, Ken B. Demented. "When I was a college student, I did not have such a luxury. If I did, I would have taken all my courses that I didn't directly need for my degree, pass/fail, and still come out with an excellent GPA."

If he did not have such a luxury as a pass/fail option, why should the students of WPC, Demented asked.

"The president of the United States did not get where he is by taking his low-level courses pass/fail," he said.

The majority of the students, however, did not feel the same way. The general consensus of the students was that they have a right to take such low-level courses pass/fail, said Student Misrepresentative to the Faculty Congress, Hal Windbag.

"I am a total ignoramus when it comes to such courses as math, philosophy, and other meaningless types of courses," Windbag said. "Why should I and other students in the same boat as me not be allowed to save our GPAs from being destroyed by flunking most heinously in these worthless, low-level courses, eh?"

"I must agree with Hal," said notorious student Tellinit Kissassman. "I am a total moron when it comes to such courses as accounting and economics. After all, my major is political whistleblowing. These courses aren't worth much to me, but don't tell my teachers I said that."

Student Pandemonium Association President Dude Skunkcabbage voiced the concerns of the student body at the congress's last meeting.

The students are not the only ones who have a problem with this arrangement. Another concern is that the computers in the Registrar's Office are too damn old and too damn cheap to handle these changes, said Registrar T.V. Evangelist. The school's computers were not designed to handle the book-keeping changes that would result from this, he said.

"We are taking a great risk," Evangelist said. "God only knows what turmoil will be brought upon us by this unilateral decision. This reeks of bureaucracy worse than Watergate."

The Faculty Congress passed the resolution with six for, two against and one abstention.

The person who abstained was probably too chicken to vote, Windbag said.

The decree is not law until it is passed by the Board of Betrayers at their next meeting.

"The Student Pandemonium Association thinks that this is a load of crap," Skunk-cabbage said. "We will use guerrilla warfare if we have to to get our way!"

Subconscious proven to exist

By Dominatrix

STAFF BS'er

While the subconscious remains one of the mysteries of modern science, Dr. Truth-teller, of the Society for Reading Between the Lines, cleared up a few thousand misconceptions during last night's lecture in the Student Center master bedroom Ballroom.

The event, sponsored by the Students for an Anal Retentive Society (SARS), drew a crowd of more than 100 right, try a 1000 people. SARS also sponsored a lecture given by Tony Randall last semester.

"The subconscious is something you can't quite put your finger on and I suppose you wouldn't really want to if you could since you never know where your finger's been anyway," Truthteller said.

Although the existence of the subconscious is generally accepted there are a few skeptics jerks, as Truthteller pointed out.

"In my profession there are a few individuals who deny the existence of the subconscious. Well I say they're a bunch of ass-holes pooheads," Truthteller said.

In attendance were a number of students who were new to Truthteller's technique of involving the audience in his experiments.

"When I am finished with my speech you will do what I tell you to do sex even if you don't want to," Truthteller said.

"I never thought that I would do something I didn't want to do, except go to college, of course," said freshman

Bill Pushmewayover.

Truthteller tells people one thing and uses his powers of the subconscious to make them believe they heard something else.

"It's really very simple, you know, but I can't tell you what my secret is since I would lose this job and never be able to lecture again," Truthteller said. "I would probably miss payments on my Honda Mercedes and couldn't sail around the world twice like I've been wanting to, you know?"

"I really enjoyed the lecture since I can kinda ignored the actual lecture but I'm sure that I've learned something," said Jerky "Ace" Myers, sophomore.

Truthteller is an associate professor should be Dean at Eclair State College where he teaches a variety of knot-tying and pastry-making courses. Truth-teller's interest in the subconscious stems from a childhood accident involving his mother, a puppy, argyle socks, and a garden hose even a John Denver tape but Truthteller would not elaborate.

"It's a long story that I would rather not get into. Let's just say I'm still in therapy," Truthteller said.

Truthteller's lecture was not received with equal praise by everyone in attendance. The lecture was interrupted halfway through by a protest damn 1960's thing involving the Student Mobil Gas Station Committee.

"In the early 1970s students had a say in whether or not their subconscious could be invaded," said Hal Levi's, SMGSC director.

Although SMGSC hippies succeeded in interrupting the lecture, but not the spirit of the lecture.

"I was very satisfied with the lecture where did my condoms go? I informed the President that perhaps we could use this submarine stuff on the '92 campaign," said Dan Quaildropping, United States Vice President of Funeral Services.

Quaildropping's surprise appearance made for a memorable afternoon right and Truthteller was thankful.

"I thought the evening was great and I can't wait until tomorrow when people remember some really weird shit crap," Truthteller said.

The lecture was free for students but they probably didn't even know it.

EDITORIAL (OR, THE EDITOR BITCHES AND MOANS)

Everything's peaches 'n' cream

Well, here we are on the ideal campus of WPC. No problems, no relation to the outside world, "everything's peaches 'n' cream," to quote a Steve Miller. So there's really no point to writing this editorial. We can all stop being such an active student body and become apathetic. Now, I know that'll be tough, but we can handle it.

Look around you. The war is over, and at least our boys didn't come home dead. Oh yeah, a few Iraqi boys died, but so what? They're Iraqis, right?

President Bush is feeling better, and it's not like he had a heart attack or anything—just arterial fibrillation. And even if he had needed that operation, hell, Quayle would have done a great job. We all have faith in good old Danny. And we'll all go out and vote for him when his time comes, right? After all, we all take the thought and time to vote and we all vote the "right" way. Danny-boy has got nothing to worry about.

Our Board of Trustees tabled the vote on the proposed laboratory course fee, so we'll be fine. They wouldn't make the students pay $30 for each lab or studio course. They know not to, because so many students showed up at last week's board meeting and told the board that many WPC students can't afford to pay $30 extra for each course involving technology. But if they pass the fee, which they won't, it's okay, because those unfortunate students will dig up the money somehow. If they have to lie, cheat, and steal to get an education, we don't want them anyway, do we? They deserve a future at McDonalds.

And now that we elected a new SGA Legislature, we've got nothing to worry about. They'll watch out for us and tell the administration what we want. And of course the administration will listen to these honest legislators (none of whom would even think of practicing nepotism).

And did ya hear? Those newspaper people at Montclair State are shouting about censorship again. It seems some very wise person in their office of Institutional Advancement hid the student newspapers from alumni. We wouldn't want the alumni hearing all those vicious rumors about student arrests and a sex offense, would we? Hell no. Then they might think that crime happens on college campuses. What a silly idea!

So you see, we have nothing to worry about. We can just go to classes and party and be carefree youths. Yes, our world is truly Utopia realized. Isn't it great?

REAL LETTERS

No more poseur good samaritans

Editor, The Bacon:

I know this letter is coming out in The Bacon, instead of The Beacon, but I feel that it is very important that I get my point across before I graduate.

I have been at WPC for almost five years and I have seen many people come and go. I have been involved with SGA, TKE fraternity, Catholic Campus Ministry Club, and other various organizations. I am writing this letter in regard to the students on this campus who say they stand up for the right thing, equality for all, anti-racist policies, and other forms of help for their fellow man/woman.

I feel that many (not all) so called "radical" students in this school feel that just because they dress in jeans and tie-dyes and say "this is wrong, that is wrong," they are solving the problems of the world. Hey, I'm sure going to a protest, carrying a sign, and chanting "give peace a chance" is fun, but get with it folks, doing work for society is not always fun and glorious. Working for a cause is something definitely unpleasant and also definitely unprofitable.

Many of these students who say they stand for this and that are the ones who are always trying to take others down so they will not be discovered. The odd thing about it is that people they try to label as no good are the ones you find doing most of the social work. These are the people you see going to nursing homes; going totally out of their way for food drives, money drives; working with various coalitions in Paterson for the homeless; campus cleanups; working with differently abled children; going to the veterans' hospital; raising money or giving toys to parentless children; working with Special Olympics; doing walk-a-thons; working with the United Way; giving to Easter Seals; trying to help end apartheid, and many other projects that slip my mind.

I would like to know where are all these great peace lovers when all the dirty work is being done. I always say if you want to make an antiracist policy, get up at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday, grab yourself a toolbelt and some tools, and go down to Habitat in Paterson. Volunteer your time and help build houses so that these people could get a chance to own a nice house. Get your hands a little dirty. It will not hurt. Wearing a pin on your jacket is the easiest thing to do. Getting up on Saturday early in the morning is a different story.

Just remember the people who you look up to in this world that tried to make a difference, worked extremely hard to get their point across. Some even died for their causes. They didn't just sit around talking about what should be done. Talk is cheap! Actions speak louder than words! Empty barrels make the most noise!

So the next time you try to label certain groups and organizations as being good for nothing and not doing much, ask yourself what you do. Some people would be impressed if you did about one-tenth the work.

Graduation: to celebrate, not protest

Editor, The Bacon:

While we empathize with the faculty's concerns in dealing with the current contract situation, we believe that it is in the best interest of the entire college community that these concerns be addressed at a more suitable time.

Commencement is a celebration for those students who are completing many years of hard work and endless effort. It should be a time of reflection and happiness among the students, their families and friends. It should not be a time of protest. We support the faculty's concerns and are sympathetic with their issues. Our concern, however, lies in the overall tone and seriousness of the ceremony. We ask that each of the faculty reflects back to their college graduations. Remember how proud you were to pass your favorite professor and feel a sense of accomplishment. Would you have had it any other way?

Stunado, Dean of stupids

By Al E. Kat
EZWIDER EDITOR

A video just released by Tellinit Kissassman depicts a secret meeting between Dean of Stupids Dom Stunado and President of the Student Pandemonium Association Johnny Skunkcabbage and reveals a plan to "rub out" President Sneer.

Angered by Sneer's decision to fire his assistants Camaro and BaTrekka, Stunado allegedly ordered Skunkcabbage to "rub-out the dirty, rotten #$$@*!!"

Eager to please Stunado, (who is reportedly "like a father to him"), Skunkcabbage readily agreed. At this point, Kissassman, who is also known as the watchhog, began jumping up and down screaming

President of Student Pandemonium Association, Johnny Skunkcabbage

"I got it all on videotape, you guys are really gonna get it now because no one is above the law!"

When done with his filming, Kissassman immediately went over to channel ape T.V. with the incriminating evidence. This was the last sight-

With the critical and commercial success of Silence of the Lambs, NBC has proposed a television series based on Anthony Hopkins' character, the cunning psychotic psychologist (and cannibal) Hannibal Lecter. Many of the film's participants, including star Jodie Foster have scoffed at the proposal, mostly due to the fact that NBC wants to make the show a situation comedy. If all goes well for the network, "Party Hannibal" will air Thursday nights between "Cosby" and "A Different World," and will star Robert Urich as the psycho shrink attempting to get his practice back on track. Ruth Buzzi will play Hannibal's "wacky neighbor" and sometime love-interest, June.

In an incredible casting blunder, Pretty Woman star Julia Roberts has recently signed on to portray the nymphomaniac lover of a sleazy con-artist, played by her real life brother, Eric Roberts. Their many steamy "love" scenes will be "a real challenge" according to Julia. Eric claims not to be disturbed by the problem, having studied Shakespeare's works early in his career.

Martial-arts mega-star Steven Seagal this week signed a blockbuster deal with Paramount Pictures to star in twenty-four more action films. The next six, in production now, are Kicked in the Face; To Hell With Miranda Rights; Butt-Kickin' Buddies, (Co-starring Prince) Tall, Dark, and Monosyllabic; My Fist vs. Your Pelvis, and They Killed My Wife, Threatened My Kid, and Now I'm Gonna Hunt Them Down Like Animals and Systematically Break Their Limbs. When his current contract expires, Seagal hopes to produce and direct a film about a young Iowa farmboy and the plight of his family during the late 1800's.

Kevin Costner, reportedly tiring of his God-like status in Hollywood, is reportedly in search of a script in which, "my character has sex with a lot of good-looking chicks."

Martin Scorsese, always exposing troubled, gritty characters in his films, (like Jake LaMotta in Raging Bull) has chosen to direct Mackey, the tragic story of Mets catcher Mackey Sasser, whose inability to throw the baseball back to the pitcher without double-pumping cost him his starting job to a .160 hitter. A scene where Mackey argues a called third strike is rumored to be one of the most chilling of the film decade. "My character is a guy with plenty of

When EZWIDER attempted to reach Kissassman for comment, there was no answer at the watchhog's door; there was only a dead canary.

When asked of the disappearance, Skunkcabbage only replied, "I am sure he will become a permanent fixture at the college. He is firmly planted in the foundation of the student center."

demons," says Robert Deniro, who reportedly prepared for the role by dying his hair blonde and learning to chew tobacco. Originally slated for summer release, but due to a production snag, (insiders say Deniro took a foul ball off the shin during the third week shooting) its opening is expected in early 1992.

Tom Cruise and Dustin Hoffman will return as Charlie and Raymond Babbitt in a Rainman sequel. The two reluctant stars were lured back by two studio compromises. Hoffman will take home 97% of the film's box-office receipts, and Cruise has been given the green light to write and direct. Cruise's love for auto racing will be reflected in the project, as autistic savant Raymond will go up against the likes of Indy 500 legends Al Unser and Mario Andretti in Rainman II--Of Course, I'm an Excellent Driver.

Blue Velvet and "Twin Peaks" creator David Lynch has reportedly been inspired by Madonna's recent documentary Truth or Dare, and has begun filming a backstage chronicle of the New Kids On the Block tour. The ratings board has reportedly had a collective fit over a post-concert scene involving the band, a chainsaw, Dennis Hopper, and Cheese Wiz.

Some of Hollywood's greatest, Pacino, Hackman, Waklen, Streep, Lange, Close, Pann, Dafoe, and director Woody Allen have been busy putting together Police Academy 8 in Toronto. Ex-boxer Marvin Hagler has a cameo appearance, and wrote the script.

Business department sets precedent

By Chuck U. Farley

MANAGEMENT STUDENT &
EZWIDER CONTRIBUTOR

WPC's new Department of Management (which is within the School of Social Science, Humanities, & Management, which is within the college, which is within the state higher education system...) has received accreditation from the American Association of College Schools of Business (AACSB). Also, AACSB announced today that the WPC Department of Management will be the model for all other schools to follow if they hope to win accreditation.

Immediately following this announcement, several colleges and universities (including Harvard, Wharton School of Business, and New York University) announced the merger of their management schools with their schools of underwater basketweaving, in compliance with the new accreditation standards.

WPC's new management structure came about as a side effect of the restructuring plan passed by the Board of Betrayers last February. The plan, which was designed by Anymore Smut, vice president of Academic Adulteries, originally met much opposition from students. Those students claimed that a department of management, as opposed to a school, would not receive accreditation.

"I knew we would receive accreditation," Smut said. "The plan leads to a more efficient, less fragmented, more concise, more combobulated (as opposed to less discombobulated), less impotent...What the hell was I saying? Oh yes, it will promote a unity and cohesiveness which will best serve...the college."

Management students campus-wide have been trying to ward off recruiters since the announcement was made public, said accounting major Stocks N. Bonds.

"I really thought the merger would devalue my degree, but boy was I wrong!" Bonds said. "I've already had offers from IBM, General Motors, and the American Institution of Philosophizing Accountants."

New requirements for accreditation require that:

* Students take classes in Ancient Mesopotamian Concepts of Marketing; Shamans, Witches, and Economics; Myth and Folklore in Modern Business Practices; Ponderance of Accounting Principles in the Renaissance Period, as well as 112 credits of general elective classes.

* The dean of the school which houses the management department have no prior knowledge of practical business skills.

* Classes be available on Fridays and Saturdays between the hours of 5 a.m. and 9:30 a.m.

A spokesperson from AACSB acknowledged that the departments within the school housing management have no relation to each other, but added that the idea is not to produce just high-quality business students but to create a program wherein business students can philosophize as to why they cannot get jobs.

"I thought I knew why I was here," said economics major Price Fixxer. "But now I'm a little confused—is the wallet half-empty or half-full?"

Coincidentally, along with his decision to take over the William Person College Fornication, President Arnie Sneer also decided to take over AACSB. That takeover was completed one week ago.

How to cure... the munchies

By Alice B. Toklas

MUNCHIES EDITOR

So, I'm hangin' out with my friends, partying a little (or a lot) when we all realize, simultaneously, that we have the munchies. What to do, what to do...

Well, we could go out to the diner, or to Mickey Dees, but then we'd actually have to move. There might be something in my kitchen that I can make.

I look through the fridge: soda, milk, old bread, an empty jelly jar, butter, a fruitcake left over from Christmas, eggs, and leftover macaroni and cheese (cheese and macaroni!) from last night.

So I go through the cabinets, searching: spaghetti sauce, mixed nuts, Captain Crunch, motor oil (how the hell did that get there?!), brownie mix, peanut butter—wait a minute! Brownie mix (ooh, aah...). There's a lot you can do with brownie mix. And there are eggs, butter, and milk in the refrigerator. This could just work.

I call my friends into the kitchen and start giving out assignments. You, get the bowls—not your pipe, you idiot, the mixing bowls! You, get the stuff out of the fridge and read the directions off the brownie box. You, turn on the oven and start mixing everything.

And what are you gonna do? they demand.

I have an extremely important job, I tell them. I have to mix in the special ingredient.

With that, they grin their perma-grins and set to work.

Pretty soon, everything is mixed, including that lovely special ingredient, and ready to go in the oven.

We're all salivating profusely (which is a good thing when you have cottonmouth), but there's still need for some more preparation.

We go around the apartment, tightly latching every window and door to keep the fumes in. Then we each pull a chair up to the oven, to watch (and smell) our brownies cook.

Pretty soon, the apartment smells great and we crash out in the living room to eat our brownies. Of course, we'll have the munchies even worse later, but at least now we know the best way to handle them.

Well, that's all from this smoky apartment. Enjoy.

I love you,

Tuition must increase

Editor, The Bacon:

I have been silently observing this whole argument over tuition increases, and I feel the oppressed minority must be spoken for.

I believe our tuition must increase. It would put William Paterson on a level with other inflated, elitist colleges, and maybe we could afford to buy a nice, expensive athletic team like the pros do.

On a more personal level, I would like the school to be able to afford to engage brilliant musicians such as MC Hammer and Milli Vanilli. As we are, our budget can only snare such obscure names as Thad Jones and Jellyroll Morton. Who are these people?

Most importantly, I come from a background where I worked all through high school, and I would like my life savings to be used intelligently and completely, to make my eight years at this school a more fulfilling experience. I think tuition increases would help weed out the riff-raff and give the rest of us our rightful place in the upper echelon of American higher education.

Sincerely,

Commuters should march on Sneer's office

Editor, The Bacon:

Let me start off by saying that I am really pissed off. I am a senior here at WPC, or should I say ASCU. That means that I have been dealing with this retarded parking problem for four years. And still all I have seen was all talk and no action on the parts of President Sneer, the college's misadministration, and mostly the Student Pandemonium Association.

I am a paying student; I demand some results from these lazy bums. I am also a voter for the Student Pandemonium Association representatives. I voted for those people who said that they would solve the cesspool of parking problems. When Tellinit Kissassman ran for executive vice president he promised that he would solve this damn mess. Instead, what did he do? That's right, he snitched on Muskrat Saidhedidntdoit, and basically said, the hell with the commuters, that can wait.

Well, Kissassman, I am telling you now that I am glad you are suffering for not carrying out your promises, that you rendered as worthless as play money. Boy, am I glad.

But, I do not think that Kissassman is the only one to blame. I also accuse the Campus Kops of vindictiveness toward the commuter students. They can obviously see that there is not enough student parking on campus, and then they have the gall to issue summonses and on some occasions tow cars or even get the local cops involved, when we park in places other than student parking.

We pay large sums of money to the school for on-campus parking and all that they can offer us is parking in North Jabib, by the Wreck Center, when the main lots are filled.

I feel that we should take the law into our own hands and fight this problem in our own way. Even if it means marching on Sneer's office. Join us in saying that this crap has to stop, NOW!

Student thanks food service for personal improvements

Editor, The Bacon:

I would like to commend our fine food service for the quality of the cuisine at Pain Hall. As a resident student, I welcome every opportunity that arises to build my character while in college.

I feel that learning to confine myself to meager foods, cramped quarters, and empty pockets will build my endurance for the real world. I think we all should learn to "always look on the bright side of life," and whistle while we worship the porcelain god!

Thank you, Pain Hall, for improving my figure and my personality!

Major restructuring requested

Editor, The Bacon:

I am outraged at the recent restructuring enacted by the WPC administration. There should have been more student input and here is mine.

All seven of the schools should be restructured into three. The School of Management should go under the auspices of Billy Fat's Pub. We should reach out to the corporate community by having the manager of Cassey O'Fools be the dean of the School of Humanities. The School of Communication should be housed in F.M. Station on Route 32. Instead of food service, there should be free condoms and beer. The current school buildings should be converted into bars. Also, alcohol should be banned from the apartments.

Bacon should be fried

Editor, The Bacon:

I think The Bacon should be done away with radically. In addition, each week a column in The Bacon should be devoted to this worthwhile topic. I know this may be an improper time to ask, but how to I apply to join?

Ya-mommi thanks SGA

Editor, The Bacon:

I would just like to say thank you to the SGA for such a productive year. I look around campus and am awestruck by all the progress we've made in shortening registration lines, improving parking, and the great shuttle bus service on those cold winter days. This year the legislators kept their campaign promises to support us in Trenton and stand up to administration in the face of cuts. Also, the way this year's legislators have put their personal problems aside is truly inspiring. I have never had so much confidence in my SGA.

This year I had the opportunity to attend the second SGA leadership retreat. I have to commend the organizers for such a great job in planning it. I only wish I could remember more of it. It all happened so fast.

Apathy on this campus has been all but eliminated, thanks to SGA's example. The legislators can always be found planning something new in Silly Pat's.

I only wonder why we need voting machines, since the candidates have always been such honest people. In fact, on election day, I must have been asked at least 30 times to vote for the most honest candidate and not the cheater (whoever that is). I truly believe they are above reproach no matter what is written in that tabloid The Bacon.

Politically yours,
Ya-mommi Morroco

Montana, Rice head to CFL

San Francisco 49ers superstars Joe Montana and Jerry Rice decided that they are leaving the NFL for the Canadian Football League's Toronto Argonauts.

They both feel that they have accomplished everything they could in the NFL, so it was time to head north.

Montana and Rice will be playing with Rahijib "The Rocket" Ismail, who just signed a multi-million dollar contract with Toronto.

Bruce McNall, owner of the Argonauts, said he is very excited for the upcoming season. McNall, who also owns the NHL's Los Angeles Kings, finds himself with financial problems.

Although Montana's and Rice's contracts were undisclosed, it's estimated that the superstars and the Rocket's contracts will cost McNall over $50 million.

After long term consideration, McNall decided to sell hockey great Wayne Gretzky back to the Edmonton Oilers for $25 million. Gretzky looks forward to the challenge and homecoming to the Edmonton, although his heart stays in Los Angeles.

The Kings, in turn, decided to fold their hockey club since the only success they've had were when the Great One was wearing an L.A. uniform.

Hustler's Corner

I'm sure you've all heard of the tragic car accident Lenny Dykstra was in last week. After he recuperates, the Mercedes corporation decided to make him a spokesman for their new and improved air bag feature.

76ers center Manute Bol has nothing to worry about after his prosperous NBA career comes to an end. The NFL can always use another goal post.

Hey Yankee fans... George is back. No, not as owner, but as commissioner. Fay Vincent decided to step down because of he says his job is "too stressful."

Right before Vincent stepped down, he reinstated Steinbrenner into baseball, but only if he would take the job as commissioner. Steinbrenner is very enthusiastic about his new position.

"Now I'm in charge!" is the slogan that George vocalizes throughout baseball. By the way, Pete Rose bet an undisclosed amount of money that Steinbrenner could not keep the job.

Michael Jordan has decided to air out and pump up with Reebok. As we speak, the new "Air Boks" are being produced.

Jordan decided that Nike was not giving him all he had expected. Not only will the new sneakers be available for basketball players, but there will also be a golf shoe. Jordan decided that he will join the PGA tour in the off season.

On Larry Holmes verge of a comeback, he knocked out Mike Tyson in the second round at Las Vegas. Tyson signed for the contract without training for the fight at all. Tyson was knocked out in the second round. Holmes than went on to say that Tyson was not a challenge and he want to fight Foreman next.

Candidates for WPC's 'Fan of the Year' selected

By Slob Constantly-Dining SNORTS EDITOR

With the WPC sports season coming to an end and the temperature rising, it's time to get out the fans- the WPC fans, that is.

It's the end of another scholastic year and that means one thing- time to vote in the Fifth Annual WPC Fan of the Year contest. This year the nominees are as dedicated as ever.

The Fan of the Year candidates are chosen by the Pioneer coaches based on the following criteria; dedication in attending WPC events, enthusiasm while in the stands, and the desperate need for a real life.

The finalists have been chosen and your vote counts. Submit your selection to the Beacon office (SC 310) anytime this week. The winners will be contacted and exploited in the next Beacon.

Candidate number one is Hugh Miditee. Hugh is a diehard, 27- year-old Pioneer fan. He is popular among his fellow fans because of his ability to show the umpires and officials just what he thinks of them. He hasn't missed a home WPC contest since 1985.

The story of Irene and Janice DeBabe is a touching one. This nominated team for Fan of the Year were born connected at the shoulder 65 years ago. They've Pioneer fans for nearly half that time.

"We're diehards," Irene noted. "We attend all the games in the hopes that we'll be the new mascot."

Another couple occupies the third ballot on the ticket. Vito and Estelle Onyou are always seen atop the Wightman Field bleachers. The 72-year old couple say they won't leave until they win the award.

However, the Onyou's must realize that the verdict of the WPC Fan of the Year is not up to them. It's up to you. So vote. The power is in your hands.

WPC Fan of the Year Award Ballot

— Hugh Miditee
— Irene and Janice DeBabe
— Vito and Estelle Onyou

Please pick one at submit to
SC 310

WPC Fan of the Year nominees- Hugh Miditee shows what he thinks of a ref's call in Pioneer football game (left). Siamese twins Irene and Janice DeBabe would rather win this coveted award than be separated (above). Vito and Estelle Onyou recently threatened to jump off the top of Wightman Field bleachers when asked what they would do for the award (bottom).
