SGA president explains disappearance

"I was probed by those freaks"

By Dominatrix
CHIEFTAIN #59

Speaking to members of the media and reporters from WPSC, former SGA President Sm'art Loot'em recounted his incredible story of alien abduction causing his disappearance from the SGA for almost two months.

"Speaking from a position of knowledge, I can reveal to everyone here this evening that my tale of extraterrestrial horror is wholly true and lacking of falsity," said Loot'em.

Loot'em's story begins on February 12 when he mysteriously disappeared from the campus of WPC. Loot'em stated that on the evening of that night at approximately 11:00 pm, shortly after viewing a rerun of "All in the Family", he exited his apartment for a stroll. According to Loot'em, strange lights appeared over the area of the Reck Center.

"Areas of bulbous luminosity appeared in the horizon mesmerizing my optic sense," said Loot'em.

Loot'em broke into a steady sprint to avoid the path of the lights which were now racing towards him at great speed. The former SGA president, however, was not able to avoid the lights' force.

"The steel-like grasp of the tentacle-like beams, like, pulled me up," said Loot'em.

LIFE ABOARD ET'S SHIP

"The beings welcomed me as one of their own. I explained to them that I would act as a conduit to my people. Unfortunately we ran into a little SNAFU. Apparently the word conduit, when pronounced with excellent annunciation, means "your mother smells like baked beans gone bad" in their native tongue," said Loot'em.

Loot'em then explained his terrifying ordeal of torture and inquisition at the hands of the space voyagers.

Sm'art Loot'em

"The extraterrestrials led me to a room specially-designed for human captives. It was decorated like a Las Vegas casino, complete with patrons and lounge singer," said Loot'em. "What I thought was an innocent room, turned into a living hell when the singing act appeared."

Loot'em stated that the "entertainment" consisted of Bacon staph writer, Antony Francine and Senior Class

President Michelle "3 in 1 Collar" Hartz singing a rendition of "Kumbaya."

"But the worst was yet to come," stated Loot'em. "I was led to a room that seemed like one big light. The beings placed me on a metal table and probed me repeatedly—I was probed by these freaks!" said an emotionally-spent Loot'em.

He went on to describe the rest of the ordeal that kept him away from his office for a month and a half.

"The last thing I remember was speaking to Elvis, Jim Morrison and recently-elected SGA President Tanny Camaro who were deeply involved in a conversation on the decline of the American political system," said Loot'em. "The King kept referring to me as reverend doctor. Apparently, it's not just in my head."

Loot'em ended the press conference with an announcement to the stunned group of reporters.

"I want to make one thing perfectly clear—I am not a crook and please vote for my tuition reimbursement this Tuesday."

These are real Letters to the Editor

CCMC responds to commentary

I cannot even find it in my vocabulary to open this letter with a salutation that is fitting. The recent commentary (5/3/93) by Anthony Francin is a blatant piece of trash and hatred. This so called "commentary" was nothing less than the dribble of anti-religious prejudice and hatred spewing from the pen of a bigot who should apologize to every Catholic and every Christian on the William Paterson College campus.

He refers to a pamphlet that he associates with the Catholic Campus Ministry. This is a lie, inaccurate and libelous journalism. "Freedom of Speech" is a right and a responsibility that this individual has abused and desecrated with such slander as referring to the Catholic Church on campus as "an eccentric cult on campus" and that "...there is a Koresh in every community, usually behind an altar."

This defamation of the name and work of Catholic Campus Ministry of William Paterson College is an outrage. Obviously, Mr. Francin is not aware of the hundreds of hours of service coordinated by Catholic Campus Ministry, to Passaic County and the college community.

I abhor this blatant and reckless slander and expect Mr. Francin to open his eyes, learn how to accumulate information for a story, be aware of his prejudices and apologize for this slanderous "commentary" directed toward every Catholic on the William Paterson College campus.

Father Lou Scurti,
Advisor, Catholic Campus Ministry

Students support CCMC service

We were personally offended on the recent commentary you had in last weeks issue. Your comments on referring to the Catholic Campus Ministry as the "cult" on campus is outrageous.

According to the article you stated that "God and religion have always been used by individuals or groups to subvert or conquer other individuals or groups." How can you compare Catholic Campus Ministry to this?

Catholic Campus Ministry is an organization whose main goal and purpose is to serve our college and the surrounding community through our many outreach programs. For example, we visit Prekness Nursing Home on Monday nights, North Jersey Developmental Center on Sundays and Tuesdays, Youth Haven twice a week and Eva's kitchen once a month. Not to mention the collections we do twice a year for the good of the homeless and hungry of Passaic county. All of our outreach programs are organized and run on a volunteer basis. We DO NOT coerce our members to "subvert and conquer others".

This article not only offends all the volunteers who spend their free time for the good of others but it also harms those who are in need of the special services our group provides.

Kathy Walter
1993-1994 President of Catholic Campus Ministry
Deborah Roberts
1991-1993 President of Catholic Campus Ministry

Religious groups united in outrage

The leaders and members of the WPC Christian Fellowship are appalled at the commentary offered by Anthony Francin. Libelous comments and accusations are made which are not based on fact or investigation. If Mr. Francin had bothered to ask any questions of representatives of the Christian community on campus, he would have found exactly the opposite of what he accuses. To group all Christians in the same category as David Koresh is ludicrous as is the charge that all Christians are sexually immoral and self-serving.

It is regrettable that the Catholic Campus

Ministry was unfairly charged and, because of the lateness in the semester, does not have a chance to reply. Therefore, we stand with the letter published and distributed on campus by CCM and call for an apology and a retraction of such sloppy journalism.

Sincerely,

Rev. Ken Vander Wall, Campus Pastor
The Executive Committee of the WPC Christian Fellowship, (Paul D'Andrea, Alisa Karamanol, Cliff Moore, Brenda Noble, Ed Knight, Paul Parmenter, John Sepulveda)
Advisors: Ken Vander Wall and Cathy Craig

Education is a privilege, not a right

I am writing in response to those on this campus who fight for affordable, government-subsidized education. One of the measures of an educational institution's exclusivity is its tuition cost. Anyone saying education is a right is mistaken, education is a privilege. If you can't afford the tuition to a particular institution, find another less expensive one. And, if you can't afford that tuition, then ask yourself why? It is because you didn't bust your bottom in high school in order to earn exceptional grades and scholarship? Or is it because you didn't save money at an earlier time in life and refused to get a job or two to save up enough money to afford tuition? If so, don't dilute the value of my B.A. by opening the campus to more and more people, because the more people that attain a bachelor's degree, the more the degree loses its value as a distinguishing factor.

There are people on this campus who don't belong here. These are the people who don't see the value of a liberal arts education in expanding their minds. Instead they want job training like at an Apex Tech and so they will cheat on exams and buy papers from Dr. Research (and you know who I'm talking about) just to get a grade to get out of here. The more you open the college to affordable education, the more students with no desire for learning will come with no aptitude for college work in quest of money and a job will come.

Unexpected volunteer surfaces at SGA picnic

By Ice Princess
SOMEONE IMPORTANT

Students gathered around the grill as the flames went higher. They watched in awe as this mystery man showed them his mastery of lighter fluid.

Then the rumors started, this man looked familiar.

No it couldn't be! Yes it was! David Koresh. He literally resurfaced several weeks after the burning in Waco.

He explained, to admiring students as they gathered around that; "I was resurrected as I promised and I tunneled all the way from Waco to Wayne just to be here with you today and play with fire."

"I wanted to be with you, my devout followers today of all days. For today is the day that I speak directly to God on 1-800-345-Mary."

Bacon reporter Evan Robbed-Blind, who happened to be on the scene, questioned Koresh about what he and God were going to discuss.

"Well, I promised father that I would beep him in fifteen minutes, so I can't really answer you but I will take your questions to Him if you'd like."

Robbed-Blind sent questions about the cosmic significance of paper or plastic, who was better in "Threes' Company" Mr Roper or Mr. Furly, and if God could be any item on the Wayne Hall salad bar what would he be?

"I will not ask Him if he is going to be on a salad bar but the other questions have great spiritual significance and I will ask them. My personal opinion is definitely Mr. Roper, just because of Mrs Roper." Koresh responded "But one important question for you, just where was Sm'art Loot'em for a month and a half? Even God couldn't figure it out."

At this point Sm'art Loot'em, recently returned from outer space, asked Koresh if he would give the blessing before the picnic began.

Koresh and Loot'em were seen leaving the picnic arguing about a sequel to Ron Howard's Backdraft.

ASST. NEWS DECORATION

Students returning this fall already know that getting things settled can often be a long and arduous task. Moving into the dorms and getting all your classes settled can be a sport unto itself and any unnecessary confusion is best to be avoided.

"I've tried my hardest but changes like these can no longer be avoided," exclaimed M. "Switch" Farmer, interim director of vice-assistant deans in charge of Campus Inactivity. "I've finally broken down, I'm going to have to clean my desk off."

In an attempt to clear up any confusion caused by the moves, Farmer was kind enough to supply the Bacon with a transcription on the possible moves. "I just want the student body to be prepared," stammered Farmer, "God knows this stuff can get real tricky." The new assignments will be as follows:

Campus cops; Where are you?

By Evan Robbed-Blind
Village Idiot

Summer's almost here, but where's The Heat? The F.B.I., the National Guard, and even a psychic have been called in to search for the Campus Police station, which has mysteriously disappeared from its usual location at Matelson Hall.

Baffled detectives, when asked what clues they might use to locate the police station, stated that "it helps that they left the 'POLICE' sign here at Matelson Hall".

Hopes were high when psychic Moonbeam Jones took a leave from his 1-900 phone line to work on the case. However, his attempt to find the police station with a dowsing rod was unsuccessful, although he did manage to find the sense of humor belonging to Can-it Bullock, a professor in the anthropology department. Bullock's sense of humor was reported missing early last semester.

So, when you've got a problem, if you can find them, maybe you can hire the campus police.

FASHION DISASTER ROCKS DANCE

By Yer Moma
CHUCKLESIDER CONTRIBUTOR

The senior dinner dance was a great success, but that's not what we're here to talk about. What were these people thinking when they got dressed to go out?

The little black dress was the standard uniform, just about every female was wearing one. Then, of course, in second place was the little red dress. Actually at this gathering anything little was in. They invented a new dance that night. It should be called the "Let's hold our dress down so our crotch doesn't show and our boobs down so they don't fall out". There were few people there actually wearing the right size.

If the girls dresses were tight you should have seen the men's pants. It was like a "Hunter" re-run, so much sock stuffing has't been seen since then. For those with enough common sense not to wear little tight things, fluffy floral pastel things came in third place. But the big winners of the evening were the old mint green or aqua blue prom dresses which we hope made their last curtain calls. Just a hint girls; grow up and throw them out. Hideous polyester things are definitely not 90's.

But the burning question is "Who looked the best?" Bacon staff, of course. Just kidding. We must take several criterion into considering what really works for this kind of function. 1) Skin tight doesn't work for dancing unless its some sort of lycra/spandex thing which would be entirely too tacky for a semi-formal event. Fortunately, no one even dared pull the lycra/spandex off. It was however painful to see several young women writhing in their prison dresses. They were even heard to say in the bathroom, "I hate these events, I'm always so uncomfortable." Hint number two: Get the right size. Putting your size 36 chest into a 32 c dress is never flattering and generally uncomfortable.

2) Gold lamee' is always nasty looking any where outside of Las Vegas. 3) This is not a prom. Even those who weigh more than a small tow truck can't get away with fluffy pastel prom dresses. All it takes is a look in the mirror to see that pastels make people look bigger. The best bet for a large size young woman is a sophisticated dinner suit in almost any color other than pink, aqua or mint green.

4) Less is more. Too, much tacky jewelry, shiny stockings and chest hanging out just doesn't do it any more this is not the seventies. Try to go with simple sleek and elegant. If you just can't seem to find something tasteful alone, find a gay man to help you. (It really isn't a stereo type, they are wonderful. We don't know what we would do without ours.)

A largely ignored part of an overall look is the hair. Some sorry souls teased their hair into high raats nests for their initial appearance. Of course these "do's" lasted all of 15 minutes and by the end of the evening looked like stringy, knotted, greasy spaghetti. How well your hair stands up is a real sign of fashion sense so don't ruin that overall look with some over sprayed pathetic attempt at sexy. Just go with a simple not over sprayed look.

Your best style bet for these events are comfortable, elegant, simple clothes in the right size. We all saw a lot too much of some people at Friday's dance.

Next on our fashion agenda is the boy's club. Will someone tell the guys that the cheezy flecked quasi-tweed is hideous? Even when it was fashionable among those who had no taste it was ugly. Now that it isn't even trendy it's worse.

We have already mentioned that tightness problem. Guys, not just for fashion sense but, also for health reasons stuffing sock into already tight pants is a no-no. We know several gentlemen from that evening will be singing soprano for days.

The best dressed gentlemen were sporting smart spring suits in shades of grey, tan, olive and of course, the ever stylish black tuxedo. Although some men did overdo even the tux. You can take your jackets off boys, it's not a meeting with President Clinton.

Mini-Circus of the Stars Gone Wrong Former "Love Bote" Capt. Reviews...

By Gavin McLeod
AS YOUR SHIP'S CAPTAIN

When you've worked with the best of 'em, it's hard to get excited by a "straight-to-video" all-girl, karate movie. I mean Sonny Bono, Charo, Bobby Vinton, Tom Bosley, Adrienne Barbeau - they're the heavy hitters and how they've manage to stay on top all these years I'll never know.

But Angel Fist is a different story. There's just something about differing degrees of nudity, Playboy Playmates and martial arts that does something special for a guy my age. It's uplifting in a sense - much the same way a fire hydrant is to a strapping young pup.

From first glance, the video's cover sang a sweet, seductive ditty into my wooly ears (if only God had graced me with more splendidous follicles atop my barren dome...). I knew straight from the get-go this was gonna be HOT RENTAL ACTION.

Not to be mistook for Angel Heart, Lisa Bonet's stimulating foray into statutory taboo and treachery, Angel Fist is more of a cerebral film in that it deals with the never-ending conflicts of good and evil, right and wrong, to implant or not to implant. Sometimes the dialogue borders on sheer genius with its usage of simple, poignant phrasing and monosyllabic tendencies.

North American Women's Karate Champion Cat Sasoon is the star of this inspiring example of modern filmmaking and when she utters sultry lines like, "...third degree black belt in Taekwondo..." I can't help but ride around in diapers on my Big Wheel for hours.

During the climax which comes... I'm sorry where was I? Ah, yes, the highly climactic scene that arrives surprisingly early in the film. The scene begins with Sasoon emerging from a steamy hot shower, all naked except for a pair of lovely silk panties that could have been taken right out of my own drawer. Suddenly, she is alarmed by two Manilian nationalists beating up her boyfriend, what's his name, who is obviously sexually inadequate and totally wrong for her. Sasoon goes on to conquer these intruders in a bouncy fight scene that allows no time for her to dress. Dramarama, baby.

Among the film's extending attributes are the repeated but wholly necessary shower scenes, Sasoon's revolutionary "painted-on" tie 'em up, tie 'em down wardrobe designed by @@@@ and the wonderful shit-kicking, beat-men-down-for-fun, domination elements that really move the viewer to new heights of cinematic satisfaction.

A special mention must also be made of Sasoon's seemingly unstoppable breasts featuring those comical and wacky silicon augmentations that virtually took on personalities all their own.

All in all, this film really broke a lot of ground for a genre that had been infamous for its senseless excess of sex and violence. It showed that delicacy can be dazzling and that spandex is one of the most under-rated forms of fabric on the planet.

Hopefully, Cat Sasoon will start answering all those letters I've been sending her and we can then begin a new life together on the Pacific Princess. Please don't misunderstand the dead rat I sent along, it's only a token of my love. You just haven't felt ecstasy 'till you've experienced a ride on this waxy, bald melon of love, Sasoon. WHAT'S IT GONNA TAKE?!

WANE CHAMBER GETS GROOVY

By Fred "Re-Run" Berry
"WHICH DOOBIE YOU BE?"

The Wayne Chamber Orchestra met once again on April eleventh to perform a fresh batch of old favorites. The night's event was aptly titled for its theme: "Circus of the Stars, Banana Seats and Velcro Sneakers."

Switching up from their stuffy, obscure classical format the night was filled with some fantastic versions of some of the 70's and 80's greatest blockbuster hits.

The night was introduced with a dramatic rendering of the theme to "Sanford and Son" which featured a solo by nose harp virtuoso Skidprink Shlimbaskovitz and was dedicated to the late Red Fox. This endearing tune ran smoothly into the Sammy Davis Jr. tune, "Keep Your Eye on the Sparrow."

The orchestra then broke into an inspiring medley of selections taken from the soundtracks from the Breakin', Breakin' 2: Electric Boogaloo and Beat Street films. Their take on artists like Chaka Khan was breathtaking.

It would seem, at first thought, incomprehensible that a chamber group could pull off arrangements of such textured pop masterpieces, but when those cellists and bassoonists and french horn players give it to you, you know it's the real deal.

Audience, musicians and faculty alike relished in the opportunity to re-experience all those wonderful songs from yesteryear.

When the group played the theme from "Welcome Back Kotter" it was pure nostalgia that stank up the room as idiots and no good, low down punks bellowed the chorus in unison.

Other highlights included a stirring rendition of The Bee Gee's "Jive Talkin'", the groups take on "Disco Inferno" and some totally rad tunes by the likes of David Soul, John Denver and Steve Allen.

The finale summed it all up when they seamlessly blended "The Honeymooners Rap" (originally recorded by Eddie Murphy and Joe Piscopo) with Rodney Dangerfield's unforgettable stab at hardcore funk "Rappin' Rodney."

As far as the overall crowd reaction, Dee loved it as did Mable and Rog, Dwayne shook his booty all night long and went home half-crooked with Shirley. As for me, in the words of Leo Sayer, it made me "feel like dancin', Whoa, dancin', Whoa, dance the night away."

He shoots, he scores! Well, maybe not. The WPC varsity ice hockey team is on its way to Koldashell, Alaska to take on the Koldashell Eskimos for the national championship. The Pioneers had earned its way to the finals by beating the Waco Warriors. WPC was up 3-1 when the game was stopped at the beginning of the second period, because a fan, claiming to be Jesus Christ, began throwing Bibles onto the ice. WPC then left the arena in fear that they would not be allowed to leave if the fan was not subdued. The WPC coach was later seen at a local barbeque, but could not be reached for comment. The very next day, the Pioneers were on their way to Koldashell. They were all mentally and physically prepared for the game, but something was amiss. After suiting up, team Captain Neil Dover reached in his bag for his skates, only to find them gone. In a nervous panic, he looked through the bags of every man on the team. They were all gone. The skates of every team member were gone. Walter Dumi, the equipment manager, had forgotten to load the skates into the player's bags. Needless to say, the Pioneers were in a jam. They couldn't go out and buy new skates because they had no money in the budget. The only thing they could do was play the game skateless. I think it need not be said that the team had cold feet. So the Pioneers went out onto the ice and skated, no hur..., socked around the ice. There was no score throughout the whole game, and both teams were playing well. The Eskimos were impressed by the guts of the Pioneer team, and did everything they could to win. But in the last minute of play, the Eskimos gave the puck away in their own zone, and Pioneer center Rusty Pipes beat Eskimo goalie, Stack D. Paddis, giving the Pioneers a 1-0 lead. The final seconds ticked off the clock, and the Pioneers captured the National Championship. Way to go guys, you really socked it to 'em!

Golfers use 'mental edge' beat BSC capture NJAC championship, face Swedish team in tourney

The WPC varsity miniature golf team became NJAC champions by defeating Brainless State College by a narrow three strokes. The Pioneers finished at one below with a 45.

The Pioneers by winning the NJAC will move on to the international 128-team tournament in which 54 countries will be represented. WPC will face the sensuous female Swedish team at Vladivostok, Russia on May 13.

The Pioneers were led by senior co-captains Harry "Clubhouse Butthead" Rosenstein and Jimbo "Panty Wearing" Quaid. Both managed a hole-in-one on the last hole, and in turn, each won a free game.

"They (BSC) put up a good fight, but they were so freakin' stupid that we couldn't help but win," said Rosenstein. "I can't wait to face those damn Swedes. We're gonna really, really, crush them."

WPC started off slowly and trailed BSC through the front nine, 23-25. Then began the comeback.

"We knew these bums were gonna choke," said Francis "One-Ball" McGee. "After that kid chopped the ball right into his teammate's groin area from five feet away, in the 10th hole, we were in control."

Said coach "Crusty" Ray Brown, "Well you know, in my day, we wouldn't be playing a blind/one-armed team. We'd catch 'em when they came off the bus and beat the living pulp out of them with our putters and win by forfeit."

"I can't wait to face those damn Swedes,"
- Rosenstein

"Our fourth guy Johnny "Cat" Kersey, has really worked on his putts," added Coach Brown. "He made the difference today, although he almost blew it for us when he got stuck in the tunnel under the windmill on the 17th. Luckily, one of those stupid DSC kids poked it through."

Overall the team did an excellent job of reading the green, avoiding the hazards, and taking advantage of the other team's disadvantages.

The Pioneers will have to be on the top of their game if they are to have any chance of beating the blond bombshells, and advancing in the tournament.

Coach "Crusty" looks on as "Clubhouse Butthead", "Panty-Wearing", "One-ball", and "Cat" get ready for the Swedish team. ("Clubhouse" and "Cat" connected on three balls)
