Election day screw up changes the face of the next SGA Executive Board

Compiled from Beacon
Staff Reports

Following the announcement of the Student Government Association election winners, students at William Paterson College were led to believe that "the student's voice" would be placed in the hands of Bobi Lee Messer, Curtis Fields, Melba Mullins, Matthew Tully and Roy Garcia. An oversight by the SGA Elections Committee has revealed that this is not the case.

In a statement released by John McCormack, chairperson, SGA Elections Committee, he stated that "in tallying up the votes for executive offices, we mistakenly forgot to include write-in votes, which, in all cases, amounted to more votes than the announced winners received. We apologize for any inconvenience this caused."

The write-in votes significantly change the future of the SGA. In each case, the victor won by less than five votes. The new SGA executive board is: Ed Stiffready, president; Joe Schzeleeh, executive vice president; David "Death" Roe, vice president; Infamous Al G., Treasurer; and Tim Squeegie, Board of Trustees Representative.

Running on the platform of "This College Sucks, and the University will Suck More," this ticket of write-in winners will place emphasis on spending money and annoying people to make sure that the real issues are addressed. President-elect Stiffready is sure these newly elected people will do just that.

"Everyone says this college sucks because no one cares about what the students want," said Stiffready. "If the students want to get what they need, they chose the right people because the five of us will piss people off until we get what we want. How do you think we got this far?"

Students and staff are pleased to see the SGA is going to address what Stiffready considers "real student issues," especially smoking and drinking on campus. "If this is where we live, we're gonna do what we want, when we want, however we want to, and nobody is telling us anything else."

Mark Evangelista, SGA adviser, is already looking forward to when the new administration takes over. This group brings with them a lot of enthusiasm and dedication that will help make the SGA stronger.

"SGA is constantly in need of strong leaders that will continue to serve the students at WPC," said Evangelista. "Based on the enthusiasm showed during their campaigns, this may be the best year for the SGA yet."

The first thing the new SGA Legislature will address is the decrease in the SGA budget. Enrollment projections show a smaller enrollment for the new academic year, and the SGA budget has shrunk nearly $50,000. Stiffready and Al G. are working together to

Dictator Timebomb seizes control of WPC, changes name and image

Compiled from Beacon
Staff Reports

Early Thursday morning, former Editor in Chief of the Bacon, Lord Yoni Timebomb, seized control of the College's President position. Armed with an industrial strength drill, Lord Timebomb then forced the entire college administration off of campus.

After establishing himself as dictator, Lord Timebomb changed the name of William Paterson College to The Democratic Republic of Yoni.

"It just didn't have that Dictatorship ring to it," says Lord Timebomb. "At first I thought about creating a committee but then I remembered 'I'm the Dictator.'"

"So, on a whim," laughed Lord Timebomb, "I told some Freshman I'd make it impossible for them to buy beer on campus if they didn't remove all the WPC signs and replace them with DRY signs," explained Yoni.

"They removed all the signs fairly quickly and replaced them with some really nice ones. I'm not really sure where they got them from," says Lord Timebomb. "But it just goes to show, what you can get people to do when you put a big enough fire under their butts."

"I'm still not sure if I'm going to allow those two Freshman to buy beer," Timebomb continued. "I mean, I just like torturing people. That's why dictator is such a good position for me. Honestly, it was either this or buy an accordion and I could never picture myself in suspenders."

Ex-president Speert was found later that day sitting on a curb in Down-town Paterson. When asked about the recent events Speert explained "I'm glad it happened! My position as president was really interfering with my ability to play politics. Rot in hell, DRY! I'm running for Governor anyway."

However, a student who ran for an SGA Executive position and lost feels she has missed out on a momentous opportunity.

"I would have made a great mindless puppet for Lord Timebomb to control," she said off the record. "Also I have always wanted to perfect my ability of saying one thing and meaning the exact opposite."

One individual who will be effected by the takeover is President-elect Eddie Stiffready.

Finally, Stiffready asked "You mean I wasn't going to be the president of the college?" After a half an hour explanation of his future responsibilities, Stiffready continued, "That sucks! But maybe after Lord Timebomb's term is done or whatever, I'll take over as Dictator or, I'll run or something."

However, Lord Timebomb has several long term plans for his position as dictator.

"I plan to get personally involved in every department on campus," exclaimed Lord Timebomb. "Because there are so many things that former administrators screwed up, during their careers, it is going to take a long time for DRY to recover."

But Lord Timebomb promised, "If it takes me ten years and ten drills, I'll fix every problem on campus. My first project will be the print Journalism department, or more specifically 'The Bacon.'"

When asked if having a dictator as an advisor would infringe on The Bacon's freedom of speech, Lord Timebomb agreed it would.

"Yes, of course it will, you idiot. But I always thought freedom of speech was overrated. In fact, that is one of the main problems with Print Journalism today. People just don't understand that freedom of speech hinders a dictator's ability to rule effectively."

"Besides, with the help of my friend Binky, I'm planning to take over the world tomorrow night, and I can't have all this negative crap lying around, saying 'Yoni didn't do this, and Yoni didn't do that...' it would all be a big pain in the ass and I don't feel like dealing with that," says Lord Timebomb.

The Bacon will be losing its First amendment rights but it will become a national publication as of next fall. But as Lord Timebomb has ordered me to say "Yoni is never wrong."

Speert plans to run for Governor of the state of New Jersey

By Yoni Timebomb

Standing on the steps of William Paterson College's Morrison Hall, Arnold Speert looked more like a nervous student than a college president and political contender.

"I really think that I could do to New Jersey what I have done to WPC," he said to no one in particular. It almost seemed a statement of self-reassurance rather than a declaration of intent. But for Speert, there was no turning back. In a few moments, that last of a litany of introductory speakers would be finished and Speert would walk through the doors to face a crowd of thousands and his own future.

The setting couldn't have been better. A college campus with a working-class student body. A crowd filled with students more interested in the media than the messages of the speakers, but a crowd nevertheless. Finally, a political arena screaming for contenders who have the mass to aggressively lead New Jersey into the next century.

Speert, who has been president of WPC since the 1970's, officially declared his intent to seek the Republican nomination for governor of New Jersey today. Much to the shock of political commentators and others, current Governor Christine Todd Whitman immediately released a statement withdrawing from the elections and endorsing Speert for the Republican nomination.

"I feel that Arnie has the inborn characteristics needed by a politician," the press release from the Governor's office read. "His ability to dodge issues, his mastery of the English language, and his people skills are the necessary ingredients for a great politician. Unfortunately, there are no other candidates with comparable skills and experience. Arnie will have no problem following my role model and leading New Jersey."

The Governor's statement lead many to speculate about her desire for a white house run.

"I would not be surprised if she is planning to seek the vice-presidential or even presidential nomination," said a source close to the administration.

Speert has been known recently for coming to heads with Whitman over proposed cuts to the states institutions of higher education. As a recent presentation, Speert threatened that with the current cuts increases could be between ten and 14 percent.

At WPC, he had managed in the past to keep tuition increases below five percent while improving and expanding the college and keeping the school out of debt.

"I cannot take all the credit myself," Speert said in a recent interview. "It is important to have a great team and that is what we have here at WPC." He also credited his success to a student body that has been part of a campus wide sleep deprivation experiment for the past ten years. WPC students and New Jerseyans alike responded positively to Speert's early ideas.

"I think that he is as cute as the Pillsbury Dough Boy," said a retiree from Belleville.

"Hey, he is the only one who has spoken to the people with solid ideas not just smoke and mirrors," said a WPC student, referring to Speert's plan on reducing the tuition increase at WPC.

Under his plan, the college will raise tuition six percent, and add a line of fees amounting to four percent called "money the state is stealing from your poor pockets fees." The additional increase will be offset by Speert himself who will donate his Governors salary and his WPC presidents salary amounting to nearly $50 per student.

"We have to start cutting at the top," Speert said. "We can't say that things are tough and then give ourselves fat raises, nice offices and new cars."

Whether he will be able to take this message of self-sacrifice to New Jersey voters is still unclear. One thing that is sure is that whether or not he stays at WPC, students won't really notice.

At the rally, two students got into an argument while Speert was speaking.

"No that is Teve Torbos," said

one.

"No that is Howard Stern's father," said the other.

The one thing that is sure is that the future won't be boring.

Admissions policy to sort out crazy applicants for DRY

Under the wrath of Dictator Yoni Timebomb, interested applicants to the college will be subjected to a battery of excruciating, embarrassing psychoanalysis testing. Students who appear to be slightly abnormal will be rejected immediately.

By Pammy Lalalalangan

Ever notice some ODD people walking around WPC? Well, the administration is finally doing something to boot out these non-conformists by initiating a new admissions policy. With the new name change to the Democratic Republic of Yoni, changes are being made in the admissions department. Along with extensive psychological examinations being added to the procedure, appointments must be made for any future students to meet with an behavior expert. The expert will then determine whether the student fits at DRY, whether a psychological problem exists, or if they just don't plain like the way they look.

The idea for this new plan came about recently with the new Yoni Timebomb dictatorship takeover. Yoni is tired of these sick puppies on campus, and has decided to do something about it. "What kind of people do we have running around here?" said Timebomb. "It's about time we kick these wack-jobs off campus. I'm tired of seeing so many freaks and punks; time to get back to Yoni-land."

For example, body piercings. According to sources, anyone with a total of five or more body

piercings, no matter where they are, will be required to attend a psychoanalysis session. So far, 50 students have been turned away because of the amount of body piercings. According to Timebomb, anyone who does that much damage to their body must be nuts, and therefore will not fit here at the new DRY.

Tattoos must be looked into as well. If there are more than three tattoos on a student's body which takes over more than twenty percent of the body surface are automatically banned from attending classes. Tattoos such as skulls or any other symbol of death will result in automatic disqualification from admission. (Think about it, ART classes could pose a great danger to those who are persistent with drawing on their bodies.)

Question: How will the administration know where my tattoos are? Well, a new strip search will be performed on every student wishing to take classes. If students resist, it just means they won't be allowed to proceed with the remaining admissions tests. This will all be done in good taste, and members of SAFP will be holding the "Beginning of the Year Strip Search" for all students, so as to make it LOOK like a fun event, when really it's a pain in the ass.

Throughout this strip search, another item which will be looked for is any type of branding. Any sign of branding on the human body will not even be questioned. The student will be immediately dismissed from any more admissions procedures, and psychological help will be provided. Shaving of suspicious heads will be allowed, so the administration can search for 666 signs or any other psychopathic signs. We at the Beacon are making a guess that the number of fraternities on campus will diminish greatly from this change.

Dictator Yoni Timebomb processes the information that will decide if you are "normal" enough for this campus.

Gena Zak/The Bacon

Psychological interviews will cover many aspects of personality disorders. Giggling tests for instance can tell you whether or not a person is really all there. If during the interview a person laughs nervously way too much, they will be provided with help if they still wish to apply to DRY.

Another sign of a really messed up personality could be "I'm sorry." If throughout the interview a person says "I'm sorry" way too much, this could be a sign of possible paranoid personalities.

One sure sign being looked for is incessant cursing or talking to people who are not there. The minute a student talks to someone not there, their application will not be valid. These personality tests will determine everything, grades are no longer valid in admissions.

"It's time to clean up this campus now that I've taken over," said Timebomb. "Changes are going to be made, I don't care who I have to get rid of."

Meet your new SGA Executive Board

The following are the Candidate Profiles of the newly elected SGA Executive Boards and Student Board of Trustees Representative. Since these candidates won by write-in votes, they did not fill out profiles for the Beacon coverage of the SGA candidates. To give you a better idea of who you voted into office, we have asked the elected officers to answer these questions in retrospect.

Each candidate was asked to respond to four questions, in the following order:

Question 1: What will be your major issue and how will you address it while in office?

Question 2: Do you feel the SGA truly represents the students? How would you make the SGA better represent the student body?

Question 3: When you think of WPC, what is the first image that comes to mind?

Question 4: What's the first thing you look at in the Beacon?

In order by position they have won, the following are all the incoming board members for the 1997-98 SGA Executive Board.

SGA PRESIDENT

Name: Eddie Stiffready
Hometown: Howell
Year in school: 69th
Major: Communication

Question 1: To hell with the issues, I'll address them, well, drunk I guess.
Question 2: Who the hell is the SGA? I guess I'll see them there.
Question 3: Umm... Beer?
Question 4: We have our own lighthouse.

SGA EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Name: Joe Mama Schzeeleech
Hometown: The Ghetto
Year in school: Seventh (Is there a name for that?)
Major: Communication

Question 1: Sodomy of campus! It's a real pain in the ass issue but someone's got to face it.
Question 2: Burn the very creed of the SGA, anarchy is the wave of the future.
Question 3: Booze, drugs, sex.
Question 4: That funky lighthouse on the front.

SGA VICE PRESIDENT

Name: David "Death" Roe
Hometown: Franklin
Year in school: Sophomore
Major: Psychology

Question 1: You can drink in the dorms and we have to observe "4:20" everyday.
Question 2: No. Political assassinations.
Question 3: Halloween.

SGA TREASURER

Name: Infamous Al G.
Hometown: Toms River
Year in school: 1997
Major: Communication

Question 1: Umm... what?
Question 2: Umm... what?
Question 3: Umm... what?
Question 4: Umm... the what?

SGA BOARD OF TRUSTEES REPRESENTATIVE

Name: Tim Squeegie
Hometown: The town where the pizza guy was killed
Year in school: 37th
Major: Pain in the Ass

Question 1: I feel that we have the moral obligation to spend lots of money erecting clocks.
Question 2: I think the PGA is a better representation, but they don't give you a 15% discount.
Question 3: Clocks, big fat heads, dissected chicken colons.
Question 4: Gladiator Movies.

By Popular Demand: The Newly Formatted Indiesider

By Joe Mama Schzeeleoh and Tim Squeegee

Coming to Indiesider, interviews with Polly Parrot, Jabber Jaw, and Dipshit the two-headed kitten.

To Whom it May Concern,

... Why does the Beacon have a special lengthy section about music and bands called the Insider which many people (including myself) find boring and unnecessary? This section should consist of different issues including nature, the environment, and options to the students of what happens after graduation. By this I mean job opportunities and descriptions, on-campus activities such as certain clubs and conferences, and dances and events. I am sick and tired of having to read everything that goes on in school during the week throughout all the billboards when we should just look in one place which should just be the Beacon.

This newspaper should provide the majority of its students with interesting ideas and events throughout the school instead of boring music and bands most have never heard of anyway. No offense to the staff but try including some things like what happens to the police officers on campus including safety to the students.

Also, many of us are interested in nature and we should have one day supported by the Beacon in which every student who owns a pet should be able to bring it to campus. Put this on the front page and I guarantee you will have many more interested readers. People can bring their usual pets like Fluffy the Dog or Snugs the Cat but you will have some unusual ones like my Blanco the Kingsnake or Blanca the mini Kingsnake. Snakes, Iguanas, etc. This place would remind you of the Bronx Zoo and the students will never forget this event.

Sincerely, La Tommy

Name changed to protect the ridiculous.

The Indiesider has received exactly 37 letters that include similar requests as La Tommy's letter with in the past semester, all stating something along the lines of, "We're tired of reading about shitbag, underground music; we want to hear of our wonderful nature that surrounds the college campus and job opportunities."

"So be it," replied Entertainment Editor Tim Squeegee, "I interviewed Beck, I have nothing else to offer." According to a newly written contract that redefines the Indiesider the author Pookie Sawed-off boldly stated:

1. No more music! No punk, rock, indie, dance, folk, insightful poeticness, show reviews, interviews, album reviews, seven-inch reviews, nothing!!!

2. Nature will be top focus. According to certain panelists, people will rather read about Fluffy The Kitten's first trip into a kitty litter box, than the Bosstones at the Stone Pony.

3. All members of the Indiesider will take nature walks twice a week and review their findings onto a journal which will be printed weekly in the Beacon, and

4. Every month, the Indiesider will host a "Love Your Pet Day." Every member of the student body will bring his or her pet (anything from Puddles the Retriever to Sly the Iguana) for a huge animal kingdom social party. There will be food and non-alcoholic beverages for the pet keepers and prizes for the pets that are groomed and socialize the best. But the newest and most exciting feature will be the Indiesider's newest cover story series: Interviews with pet's of students.

When asked about the new format for the Indiesider, Matthew Hempsmoker replied, "All I wanted from those bunch of punks was a week-by-week written piece about the doings of my fave performers, those hip Spice Girls, but they told me to piss up a rope, now those bastards will pay." He continues, "I personally despise nature and find environmentalists repulsive, so I figured what better punishment for the lame-ass Indiesider."

According to the other members of the Indiesider staff, they all had the same response, "We're all tired of Tim's dumbass, POP-punk attitude, what the hell is pop-punk anyway.....oh yeah, Beck SUCKS!!!" replied Death Roe.

Hardcore Eddie Stiffready's response was similar, "I'm sick of his monkey-esque ways, if he listened to decent music, cut the 'fro on top of his head and bathed occasionally, he'd be an alright leader, but I've decided that my first piece for the fall semester will be on the oppression of the Canadian Bison and I'm damn proud of it.....hell yeah!"

Infamous A1 C said, "What?"

Joe Mama Schzeeleoh had this to say, "It's been my contemplative analyzation of the aforementioned contents to which I fabricate an insightful instrumentation of knowledge to which I affix a supportive excrement of poetic theory and suggestion."

According to a poll, the 8,350 promised readers

Timebomb Makes A Bad Decision

Bitter Red
Tea

Due to low enrollment and frivolous purchases, the SGA has come under considerable financial strain and Lord Timebomb found it necessary to dismantle an institution that has stood for over 60 years. So as of 11:00 A.M. Friday May 2nd, the SGA no longer exists.

"After all they had no money," said Lord Timebomb during a press conference. "So I figured, 'Fuck 'em!'"

There are many factors that go into making a monumental decision such as this one and Timebomb didn't consider any of them, it makes him seem like a real School official.

It's frightening to realize there is someone in office who is taking action without thinking the effects of those actions through. That's a big change from the former administration's policy of not thinking about the actions they never undertook.

Members of the SGA could be heard weeping and screaming behind closed doors all day Friday, but for the first time in years they were making sense.

It probably seemed that they way because they were preventing us from experiencing their grotesque existence. You see, one by one they were committing suicide.

Personally, the Thought of SGA Members Committing Suicide Leaves Me with a Warm Gushy Feeling Inside.

Personally the thought of SGA members committing suicide leaves me with a warm gushy feeling inside, but one cannot help wondering if the SGA members weren't killed by Lord Timebomb himself.

An eye witness claims that he saw a crazed lunatic with an industrial strength drill chasing people around the SGA office. But then again I guess it doesn't really matter how they died just as long as they're dead.

Usually, I would agree with anything our great dictator suggests. However, I look at it like this: If the Beacon were dismantled because a bunch of stupid SGA dorks were concerned because we owed some six thousand dollars, not to those stupid SGA dorks but, to our printers and other miscellaneous businesses I would be really pissed!

Because let's face it, it doesn't make much sense to dismantle an organization that, although owes six thousand dollars, can pay that money back in a short amount of time.

Something Timebomb did not realize was that someone would have to pick up the tab, and that someone would be the students.

There are two main points one should come away with, having read this column. 1. the actions that Timebomb took are quite illogical. And 2. a group of people who would even consider taking such actions WOULD HAVE TO BE OUT OF THEIR FUCKING MINDS!

Top 10 Ways to Change Your Campus

We at the Beacon realize there are a great many students on campus who wish to make a difference. But due to the events which recently occurred on campus we feel protests are a bad idea.

Remember, your First Amendment right ends when you hurt Administrator's feelings. So in order for you to stay clear of said danger we at the Beacon encourage you to follow this list entitled "The Top 10 Ways To Change Your Campus".

10. Give up your job as a pizza delivery boy the tips are bad and the job will kill you. (You can't very well make a difference on your campus if your dead.)

9. Complain to the editor of the editorial page but, never write anything to him. (That's my personal favorite.)

8. Start or join a cult dedicated to comet chasing.

7.(Related to number 8) Purchase assault rifles with options for night scopes.

6. Set aside $50,000 of student funds to spend on weekends instead of weekdays. (We don't understand this one but maybe you do.)

5. Buy something the school neither needs nor can afford. (Again we do not understand.)

4. Buy something else the school can't afford. (See previous explanation)

3. Invite a speaker, to our racially divided school, who has made racially controversial remarks in the past. (See previous explanation.)

2. Change the name of our school to further confuse the students who go there.

1. Take over the college.

Yoni Hurt My Feelings

To The Editor:

What did we at the Democratic Republic of Yoni (DRY) become on Thursday, when Timebomb took control of our college?

The recent Admissions Policies administered by Yoni Timebomb requiring a psychological evaluation of all incoming students are an out rage. The policies are insensitive, unthoughtful, and they made me cry.

The new administration seems to think they have the right to say who can and cannot go here. Nothing could be further from the truth!

Everyone who wants a degree and can somehow come up with the tuition fees can go to DRY. That's the fundamental principle this college/almost a university/used to be a normal School was based upon.

I mean, if my sanity had anything to do with my enrollment at DRY I would have never even been allowed to apply. That wouldn't have been nice!

Spanky slaps around the new IndieSider

from IndieSiderpage 5 for the newly formatted Indiesider for the fall semester, was a bit more promising number compared to the 13 readers the Indiesider had on previous semesters. "We love our animals," complied one WPC attendee happy about the new format.

Another replied, "I use my pet for all sorts of stress relief, I talk to him, feed him... I'm proud of those boys at the Insider."

The following is the first of many pet interviews:

Spanky is the white retriever of WPC student Alfredo Fullbladder. After a grueling day of drooling, public defecation, and sleeping, Spanky mustered up the strength to chat with the "New and Untouchable" Indiesider.

Indiesider: So, when did you first start out being a dog?

Spanky: woof What were some of your major inspirations? Bark.

How did you and Alfredo meet?

Bow Wow Would you ever sign to a major kennel? Growl.

Any interesting tour stories? Yap.

God damn you miserable fucking dog, here we go change the whole damn format of the Indiesider to accommodate your ass and the stupid fuckers that wanted this and you don't even have the decency to provide decent

On Stage

Thanks to The Queers ripping off the Converse Chuck Taylor logo for their shirts, Lawrence Livermore and the rest of the gang at Lookout? held a benefit show to raise money to help pay legal fees. Because of Converse filing a lawsuit against them, Lookout? has filed for bankruptcy.

The show featured several bands who came out for this important cause. The Queers started the day off, playing favorites like "Wimpy Drives Through Berkeley" and "Bonehead". However, the highlight of their set was when they brought Ian Mackaye on stage to play "Next Stop Rehab."

Ben Weasel's infatuation with the Queers along with Jello Biafra's senility let the two drop their long standing feud to perform together at this show. The Dead Weasels performed a one time only show that left everyone satisfied. George Tabb also let bygones be bygones, and Furious George provided one of the most fun filled sets of the day, and showed that they haven't lost anything by replacing their bass player with a twelve year old.

No pop punk extravaganza would be complete without the Ramones, and they reformed to play this benefit. The Ramones played as well as ever, despite Joey Ramone relying on a walker to get around on stage. Things went well until an overzealous fan stole his walker out from under him.

Joey broke his hip and had to be rushed to the hospital, but luckily Alanis Morissette was in the audience and came on stage to help the Ramones finish up their set.

After the show, a melancholy Larry Livermore announced to the crowd that because of his efforts to revitalize downtown Berkeley, Lookout? can no longer afford the rent and must relocate to a third world country. Angry fans rushed the stage, and Livermore had to have police escort him to his limousine. All in all, it was a great show. Death Roe

Uranus Rising

by Squeegeeelash

Aries
(March 21 to April)

Be kind and considerate to that special someone in your life. They're probably a stalker, so you should watch your back.

Taurus
(April 20 to May 20)

You will lose your job, your friends and all reasons for living. However K-mart will have you favorite fabric softener on sale this week.

Gemini
(May 21 to June 20)

Financial success and old age miraculously come together this week. Nows the time to buy those breast implants you always wanted.

Cancer
(June 21 to July 22)

That bad feeling you've always had about being born under a sign that's named after a disease comes true as everyone born under Cancer will die this week.

Leo
(July 23 to August 22)

You know better than to read shit like this.

Virgo
(August 23 to September 22)

A homeless man named Earl will ask you to reach the canned avacados in Shop-Rite this week, bring your step ladder.

Libra
(September 23 to October 22)

You will be a casualty of Yoni Time-bomb's takeover of WPC.

Scorpio
(October 23 to November 21)

The stinging nature of your personality might get you in trouble this week. Try your best not to talk to people named "Jimbo."

Sagittarius
(November 22 to December 21)

You are an outspoken, obnoxious bastard. You think you're funny, but you actually just piss everyone off with your bull-shit, smart-ass remarks.

Capricorn.
(December 22 to January 19)

Someone will mistake you for a Cornucopia, rather than a Capricorn, and try to stick fruit up your ass.

Aquarium
(January 20 to February 18)

This 20 gallon tank usually sells for $29.99. But this week we're slashing the price to $19.99. Comes with a filter and a plastic treasure chest.

Pieces
(February 19 to March of the Wooden Soldiers)

For some unexplained reason, your sphincter muscle will implode leaving a hole the size of Arkansas in you ass.

New SGA Executive Board believes that the college sucks

find additional ways to raise money.

"Umm, I don't remember what we're gonna do," Al G. said. "I just like having money with me to buy stuff."

"Actually, what we want to do is find the easiest way to get more money, because money talks and bulls**t does something," Stiffready said. "We are going to sell professors, staff and administration off in a big slave auction. Students and other people will be able to make them do whatever they please, and we profit from their exploitation."

According to Barbara Stomber, assistant director, WPC Campus Activities, and SGA Financial Adviser, these are the most innovative ideas that the SGA has had for raising additional funds since gasoline was a nickel a gallon, when she first started working at WPC. She feels that this is the type of leadership the SGA needs, especially after the events of this past year.

"The SGA had a difficult year last year, with both our finances and our key leadership roles," said Stomber. "These types of ideas prove that there are students who really care and want to see the best for their peers. Just in the spirit of things, I'm thinking of being a part of the auction — watch out guys!!!"

Stiffready and Al G. are not the only ones with original ideas ready to be put in place next year. Joe Schzeeleeh, who will serve as the chairperson of the President's Club, wants to make this meeting into an actual club — a music club, that is.

"I could care less what the hell the clubs are doing, and most other people feel the same way. If they cared, they'd be in the club," said Schzeeleeh. "I'm going to make everyone listen to all the records we are asked to review at the Beacon. That way, I can call it a club, charge cover (more money for my pockets, I mean, the SGA) and have them do all my work."

Schzeeleeh promised students that he is going to do what the students want. He invites any student to approach him and voice their concerns.

"I want to meet the students, especially the girls," he added. "All the girls are welcome in my private office anytime."

The fourth member of this new executive board, David "Death" Roe, is not very sure what he is going to do in office. Admitting it openly, Roe has not cared about the SGA for the past two years, and still does not care very much for it now. He only ran because Stiffready promised drinking on campus.

"I don't like the SGA," said

Roe. "There are too many rules and I don't follow rules. If I can change them, that is different."

Lastly, there is Tim Squeegee, the newly elected student representative to the WPC Board of Trustees. A man of few words, he wants to get down to business.

"I'm gonna show those board members that students really do know it all," said Squeegee. "Students first" sounds alright if you are a douche-rocket, but I think that I am first, and by the time I'm done, the Board of Trustees will agree with me."

Not knog many of the issues, Sque feels that he is best suited he position. "If I don't knowthing, I can do exactly whaant and not think about the ents, because I don't know t they want."

WPC stue cannot wait for the new boio take office on June 1. Therait great change for student l and on campus.

"We're being a University, and we nee-start acting like it," said oneor from Passaic. "This camps just too lame, because thes nothing really for the students, like the clock."

Fraternities and sororities are looking forward to the new changes promised by the new SGA Executive Board. Lisa Melone, president-elect, WPC Greek Senate, feels that the removal of some restrictions will help keep students at WPC.

"Everyone knows that the only reason why students come to WPC is because of Greek Life. There is really nothing else here," said Melone. "With the changes that will be made under this administration, maybe more students will actually be part of college life, instead of being the duds they really are. Get a life!"

According to Melone, new board may be just the thing to address real student issues. "Students care about drinking and partying, not clocks and who is being kicked out of office."

Following in the footsteps of Alex Malino, Jennel Cooper, John McCormack and Jasmine Lopez will not be easy for the new officers. Whatever happens, though, it is going to be different than anything WPC has seen yet.

Admissions policy to sort out crazy applicants for DRY

Under the wrath of Dictator Yoni Timebomb, interested applicants to the college will be subjected to a battery of excruciating, embarrassing psychoanalysis testing. Students who are appear to be slightly abnormal will be rejected immediately.

By Pammy Lalalalangan

Ever notice some ODD people walking around WPC? Well, the administration is finally doing something to boot out these non-conformists by initiating a new admissions policy. With the new name change to the Democratic Republic of Yoni, changes are being made in the admissions department. Along with extensive psychological examinations being added to the procedure, appointments must be made for any future students to meet with an behavior expert. The expert will then determine whether the student fits at DRY, whether a psychological problem exists, or if they just don't plain like the way they look.

The idea for this new plan came about recently with the new Yoni Timebomb dictatorship takeover. Yoni is tired of these sick puppies on campus, and has decided to do something about it. "What kind of people do we have running around here?" said Timebomb. "It's about time we kick these wack-jobs off campus. I'm tired of seeing so many freaks and punks; time to get back to Yoni-land."

For example, body piercings. According to sources, anyone with a total of five or more body

piercings, no matter where they are, will be required to attend a psychoanalysis session. So far, 50 students have been turned away because of the amount of body piercings. According to Timebomb, anyone who does that much damage to their body must be nuts, and therefore will not fit here at the new DRY.

Tattoos must be looked into as well. If there are more than three tattoos on a student's body which takes over more than twenty percent of the body surface are automatically banned from attending classes. Tattoos such as skulls or any other symbol of death will result in automatic disqualification from admission. (Think about it, ART classes could pose a great danger to those who are persistent with drawing on their bodies.)

Dictator Yoni Timebomb processes the information that will decide if you are "normal" enough for this campus.
