English Dept. Prof. Plans European Tour

Assistant Professor Don Edwards of the Paterson State College English Department plans to visit Europe from June 6 through August 31. He will visit Spain, Portugal, France, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, and Great Britain. Accompanying Professor Edwards will be Professor Stanley Stenbridge of Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts.

DON EDWARDS, assistant professor of English, is shown above with part of his collection of Shakespearean materials, many of which were collected by him in England. Professor Edwards is returning to England this summer where he will attempt to acquire a Shakespeare backscratcher. Mr. Edwards will also take an extended tour of the continent.

Upon arriving in Spain via Pan American Airlines, Professor Edwards plans to embark upon a guided tour of Spain and Portugal. He will tour the other countries on his schedule by automobile and, at times, by plane.

Professor Edwards has several purposes for his trip. He would like to visit the scenes which inspired great European literary artists. In England, where he will spend the bulk of his time, he plans to attend selected performances during the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespeare Festival. While on the continent, he plans to visit Beyreuth and

Warner Memorial Dedication Slated

Dedication of the C. Kent Warner Memorial will take place next Tuesday at 1:30, at the memorial site between the Science Lecture Hall and Wayne Hall. Students and faculty are invited to attend the ceremony, to be conducted by Prof. Donald Levine of the Science Department.

Consisting of four concrete benches and two sugar maple trees grouped about a mounted bronze plaque, the memorial commemorates Dr. Warner's services to the college until his death in 1963.

Funds for the memorial include contributions from students, friends, and alumni, as well as a grant from the PSC Faculty Association.

Memory Theory Is Subject Of Science Lecture

Research work leading to a molecular theory of memory will be the theme of Mr. Jefferey Baker's lecture before interested members of the student body at 1:30 on April 28.

Presently at Wesleyan University, Mr. Baker teaches biology to college and graduate students and has also taught biology on the secondary level. While at the University of Virginia, he was concerned with the training of primitive worms and planaria which are now widely used in memory study. Mr. Baker is currently biology editor for Science and Math Weekly, a college paper sent to introductory science and math students in high schools and colleges all over the world. He is the author of a book on embryology and co-author of a book on bio-chemistry as well as the author of several papers in his main field of research — vertebrate embryology. He has also published many magazine articles on science and science education.

The Tuesday meeting will be held in W-232. All students and faculty are urged to attend.

The Registrar's office has completed an evaluation of each Junior student. These evaluations indicate all the credits completed to date and credits necessary to complete graduation requirements.

All Juniors are asked to pick up the evaluation sheet at the Registrar's office during the week of April 27 according to the following schedule:

- A-E—Monday, April 27
- F-J—Tuesday, April 28

Students Provide Wheel Chair For Paralysis Victim

by Regina Konowitz

Hand made display candles are now on sale in the Octagonal Room of the College Center. They were made by twelve speech correction majors who, together with Dr. Neil Sheldon, Assistant Professor of Speech at Paterson State, are engaged in a fund-raising project which is a direct outgrowth of the speech therapy program in which they participate at Preakness Hospital, Wayne, N. J.

Their present aim is the manufacture and sale of display candles at $2.50 each in order to raise funds for a specially equipped wheelchair for the use of one of the Preakness patients currently enrolled in the speech program. Suffering from complete paralysis of the right side, the young man is in need of a vehicle enabling him to steer himself in any direction with his left hand. Dr. Sheldon learned of this need while studying an evaluation of the case made by one of the leading rehabilitation centers in this sector of the country.

It is planned that the funds from the candle sale will be raised before the close of the spring semester, and Mr. Howard Trachtenberg, Preakness Hospital's physical therapist, has already ordered the chair. Mrs. Podnos, occupational therapist at the hospital, instructed the students in the technique of making the candles. Students Marie Paladino, Roger Milstein and Carol Ann Cannarella coordinated the student efforts while the Paterson branch of the A & P

Ricky Hummel's Life Stalked By Pain, Danger & Courage

by Mary Ann Corradino

Hemophilia is the traditional affliction of royalty; Ricky Hummel has been a king for twelve years. Most twelve year old boys enjoy playing football, climbing trees, and riding bikes. But Ricky isn't like most twelve year olds. Simple, boyish activities could prove too dangerous for him. Ricky is a "bleeder."

When he's well, a normal day for this boy is as normal as anyone else's. But, since September, Ricky has attended school only about thirty times. On other days, a tutor visits the Hummel home and keeps Ricky up to date with school work.

There is a television set at the foot of Ricky's bed, but he doesn't make much use of it — he would rather read. He does have a few favorite TV programs, though, such as "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Burke's Law," and "That Was The Week That Was."

Because he has spent so much time as a patient, both at home and in the hospital, Ricky has become quite an authority on his illness. His doctors are so impressed with his understanding of hemophilia, they are trying to talk him into becoming a hematologist. But Ricky will have none of it. He plans to be a writer.

Friends stop in for visits. He and his close associates are building a zoo — Ricky is chairman of the group because he cannot help in the actual construction of the project. He acts, more or less, as a supervisor.

Contrary to popular belief concerning hemophilia, it is not the outside cuts and scratches that are so dangerous, but the internal bleeding which causes the most harm. A bruise to any part of the body will cause blood to seep from its vessel and collect in the muscles and joints. When pressure in the joint builds up, Ricky suffers excruciating pain.

During a vacation in Cape Cod three years ago, Ricky injured his thigh and needed immediate attention. After an all night drive the Hummels reached Mt. Sinai hospital in New York City where Ricky was given plasma for seven

Editorial

While predictions relating to the upcoming student elections would be premature at this time, quite another prediction seems to be in order. In the past, many of the Student Government officers have been elected solely on their social merits. Proven qualifications in leadership have not been considered. Instead, candidates are judged on their standing as "one of the crowd." The amount of students present at last Tuesday's Campaign Assembly seems to indicate a growing lack of concern on the part of the students of this college community. The Campaign Assembly was provided for the express purpose of acquainting every voting member of the student body with the aims and ideals of the prospective candidates. However, last Tuesday's debacle may serve to mark the depths to which student indifference has fallen. It appears that most of the student body of Paterson State College are apathetic as to the quality of their elected representatives. Twelve candidates for SGA offices managed to draw a crowd of approximately 100 people. True, there are many demands made upon the students' activity period. But we feel that this is one of the few times, out of the entire school year, that all but the most important duties be forsaken.

Only by making oneself familiar with a candidate's point of view can we, as responsible members of Paterson State College, keep the control of the Student Government Association where it belongs—in the hands of the majority of the student body. The poorly qualified and those with a personal axe to grind should be kept out of any office in the Student Government.

Since, many times, we tend to forget the amount of authority and influence the SGA commands, a capsule reminder is in order. No student organization may exist on the campus of this college without authorization from the SGA via an approved constitution. Annual finances are controlled by the SGA and each spending agency is allocated a proportional share of the budget. Sometimes this totals as high as $80,000. In an abstract sense, the members of the administration and faculty rely upon the Student Government Association to reflect the thinking of the entire student body.

Do not allow the aims of the Student Government Association to be weakened. Get to know where your candidate really stands.

D. in Music Education.

Miss Caliandro is listed in the 1963-64 edition of Who's Who in American Education and is a member of the North Hudson Branch of the AAUW.

MISS ALPHA B. CALIANDRO, assistant professor of music, is the winner of the music award at the Creative Arts Festival, presented by the American Association of University Women.

Senior-Faculty Dinner June 1

The eighth annual Senior-Faculty Dinner is to be held June 1, in the Elizabethan Room of the Essex House in Newark. The alumni speaker will be Mr. Glenn C. Leach, director of athletics in the Englewood public schools.

Approximately 530 seniors plus 157 faculty members are planning to attend. The tables are to be headed by seniors acting as hosts and hostesses.

The dinner is an annual affair as a farewell to the faculty from the Senior class.

Editorial

For the benefit of any students not familiar with the background of Ricky Hummel, the following is offered. Ricky is afflicted with hemophilia. This is a disease of the blood that prohibits coagulation. Any injury, a slight bruise or scrape which we might ignore, causes internal bleeding in the area. As the blood escapes from the cells, it concentrates the pressure at one point of the body. This is usually at a joint and the result is many long hours of pain. Hemophilia is one of the few diseases that continue to baffle medical scientists. Though unable to find a cure for it, they have found a means by which a slight measure of relief is afforded to patients suffering from this disease. Plasma, which is the fluid part of human blood, is administered to the patient. He receives these transfusions until the pressure in the affected area is lessened and the pain is relieved. To a mature adult afflicted with this disease, certain precautions must be taken and these rules strictly adhered to. But for a young boy attempting to grow into manhood, these rules become a code of conduct.

Ricky is such a boy. Two years ago, his story was made known to the students of Paterson State College. Donors were assembled and an appointment was made with the New York Hemophiliac Association. The donors were taken to New York City by bus and donated their blood for Ricky. The Association compiled the total and credited it to Ricky's name. Unfortunately, that year he was forced to use that blood and many pints more. Last year, the Citizenship Club of Paterson State, acting under the guidance and direction of the Red Cross Hemophiliac Unit, erected a temporary collection center in the Memorial Gymnasium. The Red Cross Unit, not connected with the American Red Cross, pledged an additional donation of one-third of the total collected at Paterson State. Last year's total so far exceeded the expected goal that this year even larger facilities are being provided.

The goal set this year is 500 pints. To donate, remove the printed box from page 1 of this issue, fill in the required information and deposit this form in any of the boxes that are on the campus. These boxes are marked with Ricky's name and picture and are emptied at regular intervals. If the donor is under 21 years of age, a permission slip must be completed and signed by the parents of the donor. The college nurse will provide these forms and will also collect the Beacon forms. The largest student turnout for any event is due on Tuesday, May 12. Fill out your form now.

Ninth Grader Named Creative Writing Speaker

Approximately 120 Paterson State junior English majors and language arts students crowded the Little Theater last Thursday, April 23, to hear Miss Donna Rabin, a ninth grade student from Thomas Jefferson Junior High school, Fair Lawn, speak on an approach to creative writing through science.

Miss Rabin was awarded top honors in Biology by the Seton Hall Academy of Science at their symposium held last weekend at the university. Because of this award, the ninth-grader will be New Jersey's representative at the Academy convention to be held at Montreal in December.

Donna received the award for her extended investigation on the topic, "Creativity in Writing." In her research, Miss Rabin applied scientific and statistical techniques in her attempt to discover whether external stimuli have an effect on creativity in writing. Her investigation was an outgrowth of a similar study which she conducted last year on "Motivation in Education."

days at eight hour intervals — 23 units in all.

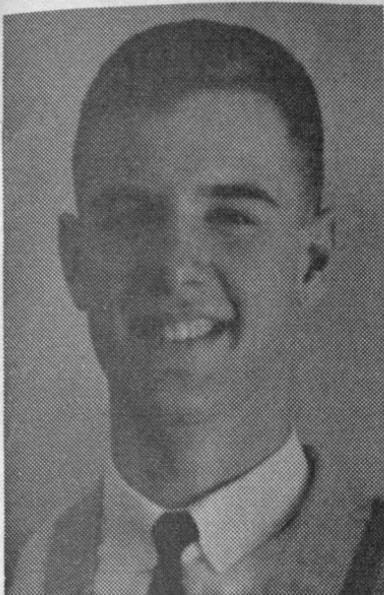

Plasma is the most effective pain killer Ricky's doctors have found. Though he has received countless morphine injections, the pain persists. But plasma flows through the affected areas and keeps the blood moving, relieving the pressure in the joints.

This has been a bad year for Ricky Hummel. Probably few people realize that this disease is not only dangerous, but also very painful. Though any pain is a lot for a young boy, Ricky says about himself: "I'd rather have hemophilia than see someone else suffer from it." He's quite a boy!

Outside of school, Steve's chief recreation comes from canoeing. He is also a member of the Fair-lawn Drum and Bugle Corps.

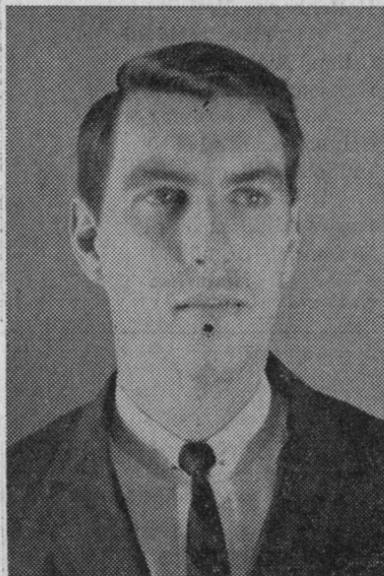

When asked what the students of PSC can expect from him if he is elected SGA president, he replied, "Students of PSC can be sure that I will display few emotional outbursts but at the same time I will offer a determined and energetic effort toward the eventual solution of Paterson State's problems."

Steve O'Connell

"There are problems on this campus which are political and social in nature which no one has, as yet, accepted the responsibility of rectifying. I have concrete proposals that can be enacted and should be enacted if we are to have a well-rounded student both mentally and physically," said Jim Forkan, candidate for SGA Vice-President.

MUSIC DEPT. CHAIRMAN, Dr. J. Clees McKray, accompanying Paterson State's Chansonettes in a rehearsal. The Chansonettes are preparing at PSC's eighth annual spring concert.

the Women's Choral Ensemble, directed by Miss Alpha Caliandro, will perform. Among its repertoire will be the melodious Lift Thine Eyes by Felix Mendelsohn. Next, under the direction of Dr. J. Clees McKray, the Chansonettes will sing, among other selections, contemporary pieces by Bartok and Copeland. To conclude the concert, Mrs. Elizabeth Stine will direct the Choir in a wide range of music including Bach's "Halleluia" from the Easter Cantata, two songs from My Fair Lady and the contemporary Ballad of Brotherhood. After the Concert, guests will be invited to a reception in Wayne Hall where refreshments will be served.

The first Spring Concert was held in 1956. A mixed chorus performed that year under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Stine. The mixed chorus was eventually made into two groups; the Women's Choral Ensemble and the A Cappella Choir. In the early years of the concert, instrumental soloists and a band under the direction of Mr. Stanley Opalach of the Music Department also performed. From these beginnings, the four regular groups that have evolved will be performing tomorrow night.

Munich in Germany, and Verona, Italy to see some of the great operas being performed as part of a summer opera festival.

"While in France I plan to visit a young lady named Babette," commented Professor Edwards. "Babette," he said, "is three years old and she is the daughter of a family with whom I am acquainted."

Last but not least, Professor Edwards hopes to visit a Shakespeare novelty shop in Stratford-on-Avon which sells over 250 kinds of domestic articles from Shakespeare's time. He wants to purchase a Shakespeare back-scratcher in this shop.

While on his tour of Europe, Professor Edwards will take color slides and collect anecdotes for class use.

Improvisation Marks Brubeck Jazz Style

by Rosanne Ponchick

"About ninety percent of all our music is improvised," affirmed jazz group leader Dave Brubeck at a recent interview following his performance before an audience of more than 900 students and guests on Wednesday, April 15, in the Memorial Gym.

Originally scheduled to appear on April 14, the Dave Brubeck Quartet received an unexpected call from the White House and had to reschedule their appearance for the following day. "My knees actually knocked when I saw President Johnson," replied Mr. Brubeck when asked for his reaction in meeting the chief executive. "Mrs. Johnson spoke with me," continued Brubeck, "and actually held up the receiving line."

Since their performance was the first jazz program ever to be presented inside the White House, it was an overwhelming honor to each member of the quartet. Last year they were asked to perform on the lawn near the White House and were highly received by all present. Following an opening number by the group, Mr. Brubeck extended thanks to Miss Anita Este, faculty advisor of the Evening Series Committee, and the student audience for allowing him to appear at the college an evening later than scheduled.

When asked if certain audiences react differently towards his music, Mr. Brubeck replied, "It all depends on the person's background and attitude towards jazz and not upon his locality." He also pointed out that one either accepts or rejects jazz and is usually subject to the trends of his environment.

Performance in front of large audiences was not as common many years ago for the quartet as is today. Organized fifteen years ago, when Dave Brubeck was a student of Darius Milhaud at the Mills Graduate School, the Dave Brubeck Octet served as a youthful avant-garde jazz band to the public. Attracting serious musicians with experiments using counterpoint, fugue, polytonality, polyrhythms, the octet was even able to experiment with poetry in jazz. In fact, many of these experimental ideas were carried over into the trio, Brubeck's first recorded group.

Mr. Brubeck's early training at the piano and cello was in the classical tradition. He started playing jazz in local dance bands at the age of thirteen. As a music major at the College of the Pacific he organized a swing band. All the members of the quartet possess the "feeling and quality" necessary in true jazz. "I've always had a feeling for jazz, ever since I was thirteen," emphasized drummer Joe Morello. "Jazz is an art," added bass fiddle player Gene Wright, "for it is not a fad that just comes or goes; it is part of our culture."

Joining the original members of octet in 1951 was Paul Desmond, who later added his name to the quartet of today. In the manner of presentation of this and various other groups can be found experimentation which anticipated many of the current trends in jazz.

"When asked how such forms of music can actually be felt, the alto saxophone player noted "beginning and ending together is the easy part. There are more intricate instances that the public is not aware of that we concentrate on." Practice for the group is not as mandatory now as it was years ago. Now, members devote a good deal of time composing as was heard in Joe Morello's performance of "Shimwa". At present Mr. Brubeck is also busy composing a ballet and jazz opera.

The Dave Brubeck Quartet has recorded the following albums: "Time Out", "Bernstein Plays Brubeck Plays Bernstein", "Time Further Out" and his latest "Time Changes".

Soc. Sci. Major Wins Syracuse U. M.A. Assistantship

A social science major from Dumont, N. J., Peter Helff has been awarded a full assistantship in Instructional Communications at Syracuse University. Three year membership in the Audio Visual Club in high school laid the groundwork for Pete's further study at PSC.

At the present time, the senior is A.V. Director for Extension Division at Paterson State, and is employed by the Passaic County Film Library Association.

The assistantship covers the cost of tuition at Syracuse, and also awards Helff $1600. At the University, Helff will either teach a three credit audio visual course or work an equal number of hours. He will major in Closed Circuit Television.

Women Fencers Take Sixth National Tourney; Melnick Intercollegiate Champion

The Women's Fencing team of Paterson State College regained the Women's Intercollegiate National Fencing Championship after two days of competition in the Memorial Gym last Friday and Saturday. One of the most exciting competitions in recent years the team victory was enhanced by the personal victory of Arleen Melnick, individual champion of the competition. The weekend tourney was the thirty-sixth annual event sponsored by the Intercollegiate Women's Fencing Association.

For the fifth consecutive year, the two top seeded teams were Fairleigh Dickinson University of Teaneck with an undefeated season and Paterson State with only one loss to FDU during the season. Included in the field of twelve were Brooklyn College, Drew University, Elmira College, FDU of Rutherford, Hunter College, Jersey City State, Montclair State, NYU, Rochester Institute of Technology and Newark Rutgers.

Seeded second behind the undefeated champions of FDU, PSC defeated their first ten opponents and entered their last match twenty-four bouts ahead of their nearest rival NYU. PSC's only loss came at the hands of FDU (Teaneck). Fighting hard for third place FDU brought the match to an 8-8 tie with each team scoring 4 touches. Elected to fence the deciding bout for PSC, Arleen Melnick was badly cut in her non-fencing hand by a stray thrust by Sandy Jurgen after the first touch. Refusing to drop out, though the wound later required three stitches, Arleen lost the bout but continued to fence with a bandaged hand, finally winning the individual championship. Despite the loss, Paterson State won the team championship 21 bouts ahead of NYU (142-121) who also compiled a 10-1 team record.

The record for individual honors was fenced at the same time as the team competitions. Arleen won this top honor with a personal record of 44-3 narrowly defeating her nearest opponent Carol Abby of NYU (43-4). Arleen placed second in last December's Intercollegiate Invitational and was a semi-finalist in the Eastern Olympic trials. Miss Abby, a brilliant left-handed freshman, represented the United States in the "Under Twenty" World Championships in Belgium in 1963 and was the only collegiate finalist in the Eastern Olympic Trials.

Also seriously injured was Joyce Dunn. Joyce's foot was stepped on early in the event. It was not until later that a bone in her toe was found chipped. Joyce placed fifth on the individual roll behind teammate Cindy Jones. Cindy placed first in the December Invitational and bested Joyce by only six touches. Also fencing for Paterson was sophomore Ann Stokes who fenced in her first varsity competition for this event.

This is the sixth time in the last nine years that Paterson State has won this event since Jane Dardia became PSC's individual champion in 1956. Losing the individual championship, the team award was brought to the campus in 1958 and 1959. In 1961 and 1962 Paulette Singelakis and Paterson State won both awards.

Credit should be given to Mr. Ray Miller of the social science department who has not only been an admirable coach of many outstanding PSC fencing teams, but was also presented with this year's Coach of the Year award.

Men Fencers Cop Sabre Meet

Lon Lawson and Tim Szabo took first and second places respectively in an Amateur Fencers League of America sabre competition held at West Point last Sunday. Lawson took a gold medal and Szabo a silver one from a field of fencers that included representatives from PSC, City College of New York and West Point as well as unattached fencers. Winner of a bronze medal for third place was Dave Holsworth of West Point.

Lawson's record for the afternoon was 11-2. He missed a perfect score by one point in each of the losing bouts. Tim Szabo's record was 10-3.

Earlier this year Dennis Delhaie took a first place gold medal and Don Lawson a third place bronze medal in an epee competition also held at West Point.

The Men's Fencing team encourages membership and active participation in the AFLA. Their competitions offer the team the opportunity to fence against top collegiate fencers and high ranking non-collegiate fencers.

Paterson Swamps TSC Nine 14-4

Paterson State devoured Trenton State 14-4 last Saturday, April 18, for the Pioneer's second conference win. Paul Reilly's victory gave PSC an overall 4-3 slate with a 2-1 conference record.

Paterson opened its relentless attack by banging across four tallies in the third inning plus five markers in the fourth. The Pioneers remained on this trail pushing in two more in the seventh and three in the final inning. Allowing only twelve safeties, Reilly chalked up his second victory.

The highlights of the trouncing included Tom DeStefano's pair of round-trippers. Dave Alexander and Vince Lupinacci also contributed circuit clouts. The Pioneers crushed Trenton by smashing out 18 safeties during the course of the rout as PSC completely outclassed their opponents.

One thing is certain — baseball at Paterson State is in full swing. After a rather shaky beginning, the team appears to be settling down. Inconsistency has tagged the squad for three two-run losses. This same inconsistency has allowed the Pioneers to blast home fourteen runs in three of its victories — two of these being conference tilts.

PSC's pitching, with the exception of the 11-9 setback by Glassboro State, has held up reasonably well. Paul Reilly has come through with fine performances against NCE and Trenton State. Born has been hurling steadily, and rookie moundman Bill Joosten is looking sharp. However, the defense lacks the much needed stability. The eleven error fiasco down at Glassboro is disheartening. On the other hand, Paterson has played well defensively in recent contests against Newark State and Trenton State.

The mighty bats of the Pioneers have, at times, caused much clamor. However, the inability to hit in clutch situations has caused PSC two 4-2 rinsings — one to Queens College and the other to Danbury State. Bill Born, Mark Evangelista, and Richie Witte have hit consistently well and have all homered. Dave Alexander has also connected for a circuit clout, while Tom DeStefano and Vince "no-neck" Lupinacci have slugged two so far.

The power contained in Paterson's bats is enough to outblast most opponents. However, this alone will not endure. The conference schedule this year is tougher than it has ever been in the past. If the defense continues to improve, and the pitching becomes more stable, the "battalion on the hill" will have a very successful season. Let's all support them!

WRA Ends '64 Basketball Season

The 1964 WRA basketball season ended with the spring vacation. Under the direction of Miss Rosemarie Leonard, games were scheduled for both playday teams and an advanced team.

Paterson State girls participated in playdays with Montclair State, Glassboro State, Newark State and Trenton State. During many of these playdays, the North Jersey Board of Women's Officials offered the practical exam in women's basketball officiating.

For the first time, an advanced team was composed and games with Fairleigh Dickinson, Rutherford, and Trenton State College were scheduled. Highlighting the season was a 24-20 victory over F. D. U.

An enormous turn-out of girls made the WRA basketball season successful.
